GOSSIP OF THE CLUBS OF THE METROPOLIS.

The Natest Craze in Note Paper—Mrs. Potter's Fancy Costume—The Married Men Prequenting Club Roems While Their Families Are off at the Seashore—Current Items, Etc.

NEW YORK, July 10 .- [Special.]-The very latest London craze in note paper is of a coars brown quality, such as might be used for doing up heavy bundles. The edges are rough, while at the top of the first page is an illustration of an old shoe, and surrounding it these words: "Hard times! Never desert an old friend!" while under the same motto, on the envelope, is a picture of an old bat-tered hat. The thing just now is to assume poverty if you have it not.

The letter on such paper bore news from our New York friends in London doing the season. Mrs. Marshall O. Roberts, Mrs. John Sher-wood, Mrs. Cornelia Van Auken, Mrs. Paran Stevens and Mrs. James Brown Potter are all together just now.

A friend was in a famous dressmaking establishment and saw a beautiful gray and silver costume in what is known as the "beefeater" style. The drapery was particularly artistic. On inquiry, it proved to be a dress for Mrs. Potter, which she had ordered to wear to Miss Adele Grant's wedding. If she waits for that occasion before wearing it, it is feared her admirers will not soon have the pleasure of seeing her thus adorned.

At nearly all the places where Mrs. Potter has recited the hostess has sent her a handsome gift in acknowledgment of the favor.

English people have been inclined to snub Mrs. Mackey, but the tact of her sex in secur-ing his royal highness the prince to dine with her settled the question forever and aye. Mrs. Mackey is a social success by this coup d'etst, even if the prince did make fun of the fit-tings and furnishing of the rented establish-ment.

Mr. Griswold Lorillard is as much interested in racing and shooting as when in New York. The other day he presented a gold cup for shooting at Ranleigh, and took out a party consisting of Mrs. August Belmont, Jr., Mrs. Pot-ter, Mr. Horn, a nephew of W. H. Vanderbilt: Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, Lady Mandeville and

Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Martin are no longer at their beautiful place in Scotland, but in London. Mrs. Martin is little seen in society, as she is in mourning. She only receives her intimate friends. She will not return to New York the coming autumn as at first intended. In the meantime the magnificent mansion on Twentieth street, with its immense picture gallery, is tightly closed, with only the servants in the basement for occupants. It was hoped Mrs. Martin might throw her house open for next winter. The grand ball which was given by her during her last season in New York will not soon be forgotten—it was on such a scale of magnificence—and several will remember the severe colds caught upon the occasion. The yard in the rear of the building was floored over and a pavilion erected, but the wintry blasts blew through the thin boards, which were decorated with tapestries. In the meantime the magnificent mansion on ing was floored over and a pavilion erected, but the wintry blasts blew through the thin boards, which were decorated with tapestries. One young lady caught the cold which shortly after resulted in her death—Miss Ruth Baylies, a beautiful girl just out in society.

It seems ridiculous, but I learn society in general are wondering why Miss Jennie Chamberlain returns to England, when she has been supplanted in the prince of Wales' favor by young Mrs. Cunard. It is hardly supposable that even Miss Chamberlain visits London solely to bask in his royal highness's smiles. She is a young unmarried woman, and therefore, pleasant as it may have been to her to receive the rather doubtful compliment of the prince's favor, it is unkind to insinuate that he in any way does or should control her movements. The fact that he is a married man seems quite to be lost sight of in these announcements, not that it can affect him in any way. but that unmarried girls will permit their names to be constantly associated with that of a married man, even though he be a prince. Besides, who knows but what she may be reinstated (?) when she returns.

A New Power in Politics. NEW YORK, July 10 .- [Special.]-Nearly

The man who found the dispatch was evidently a mugwump, for instead of sending it to its owner, he put it into a stamped envelope and sent it to E. I. Godkin, of the Evening Post. That spostle of mugwumpery printed it without consulting Mr. Reid. and ever since that time the anti-Blaine journals, have been ringing the changes on it. Their comments have given Shad Shook, as his friends call him, national fame. Harper's Weekly has printed his picture and classed him with Mike Cregan, Jake Hees, Barney Biglin, John J. O'Brien and others of the boys who run the republican machine. The classification is not quite correct. He is superior to any of them, although not quite so conspicuous. Shook applies businot quite so conspicuous. Shook applies business methods to politics. He remains under cover sometimes for years, watching the situation like a Wall street speculator. When he does come to the front he usually wins, He backs his judgment with his money, and has won large sums in election wagers. He always keeps his head. No tidal wave of earthwaissmeyer carries him from his feet enthusiasm ever carries him from his feet. He rarely opens his mouth, and when he does open it opens it only to tried and intimate friends. He has ideas of his own and frequently impresses them upon the party organization without reference to the plans of putative leaders. In making political deals he equals Thurlow Weed. He makes no mistake in his men, and he is never cheated. He has held office twice, once as supervisor, and again as collector of internal regenues in the richest districting the United States. richest district in the United States. From this he was ousted through the machinations of Joshua F. Bailey, a pharasaical reformer, who succeeded him. Within a year afterward Bailey fled to Brazil, a defaulter to the extent and he never forgets his friends. He turned up in Chicago in 1880 dead against the third-up in Chicago in 1880 dead against the third-term men, and the defeat of Grant was partly due to his effort.

When in the city, Shad, as his friends call him, puts up at the Morton house. The Union Square theater, which he built, and which he actains, is in the same building. In summer he spends much of his time on a magnificent farm, near Kinderhock. He manages the farm farm, near Kinderhook. He manages the farm himself, and is as good a farmer as he is a pol-itician. His farm is the gem of Columbia county. His business interests frequently call him to the city. At such times he may be seen at night seated at a little table in the barroom of his hotel, surrounded by friends. All tak but Shook. He listens with a chip All ta'k but Shook. He listens with a chip hat squarely planted on his head, and answerl in monnosyllables. Occasionally he smiles, but never laughs outright. He is bald headed, and he wears a heavy black mustache. His portly figure and keen black eyes would attract attention almost anywhere. He is even more deliberate in movement than he is in speech. His friends idolize him, and he implicitly trusts them. How he reposes his trust in a business way was shown recently. For fifteen years he has been a partner of one of the largest brewers in the city. His per centage of the profits was sent to him regalarly every month. Repeatthe city. His per centage of the profits was sent to him regalarly every month. Repeatedly his partner urged him to visit the estabment, but he never found time. The other day, however; he was out driving with a friend. Their cigars went out. Reither of them had match. Shook looked up. They such assurance."

Shad never changed a muscle. He quietly said: "I'm Mr. Shook," and the Scotchman nearly fell off from his seat in terror. He supplied him with matches and profuse apologies, and asked him whether he would not like to be shown over the brewery.

"Not now," was the answer. "I haven't time." And he lighted his eigar and rejoined his friend.

John Morrissey greatly appreciated Shook's friendship and sound judgment. One night Shad, in talking with him, referred to his

John sked. "I'll bet you a basket of wine John asked. "I'll bet you a basket of wine that you can't tell where your brewery stands."
"The bet is taken," Shook replied, in a quiet tone. "The brewery is on the corner of Nineteenth and Greenwich streets. Open the backet lob."

"Hold on," said Morrissey. "What's the street number?"
Shad was nonplussed. He confessed his ignorence without smiling, and ordered the wine for all present. Yet he had received fully half a million profits from that same brewery. In the political deals this fall Shook's hand will probably be felt. His brain is especially active at critical political periods, and there will be full scope for it before the November term. If there is a chance to elect a republican mayor or secure street number?"

a chance to elect a republican mayor or secure any choice crumbs that may fall from the democratic table. Shad will certainly improve it. Meantime the democracy is stirred by a curious rumor. It is now said that Fire Commissioner Henry D. Purroy will get the county democracy's nomination, and that Tammany hall will indorse it. Stranger things have happened in New York politics.

Gossip of the Clubs. NEW YORK, July 10 .- [Special.]-The social butterflies who enjoy life on an inherited income, and who flit about Europe or Newport or Long Branch during the summer months, are succeeded in their clubs by the numerous stay-at-home contingent of married men, who seldom come into these resorts when their families are at home, but who now, under the circumstances, become habitues in their leisure hours. There is consequently as good an average attendance in the clubs at this season as all the year round. Some well known writer has said something about the cawriter has said something about the ca-pacity of married men to enjoy themselves when away from their families; and the consequence of these nocturnal gatherings of temporarily liberated Benedicts in the pri-vacy of their clubs is that there is more dissi-pation and high jinks in the clubs during the supposedly dull summer season than at any other time of the year. It takes an old mar-ied mant fully exemplify the adage that ried man to fully exemplify the adage that boys will be boys when a convivial set of them get together about a round table in some quiet get together atout a round table in some quiet retreat in the club. Inasmuch as they are never about excepting in the summer, it is customary for the governing committee to overlook the spreeing of these "old boys," especially as disciplining or expelling them would naturally excite comment and curiosity. It is true that these jolly summer patrons generally pass Sundays with their families—unless they miss their trains or something of that sort, which they somehow continue to do whenever the anything going on, like a midsump festval, say. There is a jolly dinnevery day on the piazza at the Michiga cozy card party in the union fied elders who hold their hands up in pious horror whenever any of the numerous card scendals of the innesses dores heaven known horson whenever any of the numerous card scandals of the jeunesse doree become known; a festive crowd in the brilliant rooms of the Lotos opposite, often indulging in song and walk around; a wine party in the dignified New York, the high windows affording some shelter for the bottle but not obstructing the breeze stealing through the trees of Madison square, while laughter will always float out on the evening air from the windows of the Knickerbocker, the St. Nich-oles or the Union league. The departure of the various professional members either to the country or across the water has depopu-lated the Lambs,' but there is still a coterie of convivials there, as at also the University, which is one of the iolliest as well as the To Whitlow Reid, Editor of the Tribune, New York.

The excise bill will probably pass the assembly tomorrow morning. Three commissioners will be appointed under it, one a republican. The bill will materially help the republican party, giving republican saloon keepers in the city the protection to which they are entitled, and will plevent the use of the department against us politically.

The double holiday this week took most of the jolly summer bachelors away, and all the clubs on the avenue looked deserted Sunday and Monday evenings, not a solitary soul to be seen in either the Union, the Knickerbocker or the Union league. A large number of the Union of Whickerbocker.

and Knickerbocker men went out to Tuxedo There was a grand time down at the Olympic club at Bay Shore, the occasion being the birthday celebration of Mr. David Conover, who is one of the officers, and who has his summer residence put outside of the club grounds. There were numerous Union, Yacht, Lotos and Waywaywanda men present. The dudes of the Cabinet-not a bad set of the jeunesse doree, by any means—are the laughing stock of the clubs because they are homeless, pending the completion of their new house on the corner of Fifth avenue and new house on the corner of Fifth avenue and Twenty-ninth street. But for the fact that they are generally recognized as utter dudes, it is likely that some of the other clubs would have extended the hospitalities to them until they can get into their own house.

The Play Factories in Operation. NEW YORK, July 10 .- [Special.]-Now that the boycotters and anarchists are being rapidly sent out of town, and the chilling frosts of June have departed, we who know how delightful the theater is in this city during the heated term begin to enjoy ourselves.

We enjoy ourselves because there is no theater to go to. The dead color of the amusement world lying in the July sun like a tepid pool is rippled slightly in one corner by Rolard Reed, who is one of the few men who can be funny with the thermometer at 94. A few water spiders continue to skim over the surfece of the proved up town in the shares formic face of the pond up town in the shape of co opera. There is a great ominous full of pre-paration.

Steele Mackaye has completed a great play on "Anarchy." It deals with the labor question and the social problem. My young newspaper friend, Keller, has written a great play on the marriage laws, and he assured me that Mantell is going to play it. "The Wild West," which has been exhibiting for a week at Staten island, has made bucking horses and Texan steers quite the fashion. The proper caper now for our polo players is to ride a broncho in the park. Clara Morris, they tell me, has put up a tepes on her grounds at Riverdale, and practices daily on the bounding cow. Some of the fast girls who go to Purcell's for their doughnuts carry Mexican riding whips, and Wright Sanford astonished the fellows at the Union club the other day, by letting his back hair down and dying his marble brow with walnut juice. There is a refreshing air of cowboy blowing through the genteel circles, and I believe that Buffalo Bill could make a fortune if he would only open a wild west school on Fifth avenue.

FIGHTING BEER IN NEW YORK. Mayor Grace Engaged in the Work of Re-

NEW YORK, July 10 .- [Special.] -A revolutionary warfare has been waged all the week on the wide range of amusements that has from time immemorial been saturated with on the wide range of amusements that has from time immemorial been saturated with beer. The leader of the onslaught is Mayor William R. Grace, and he can be victorious if he really means to be. The leader of the only in this city in which performances are given for the diversion of the inmates can be permitted to keep open without a license signed by the mayor. The ruling states distinctly that the act covers all athletic sports, every form of music, and everything, in short, that can be done to amuse an assemblage. Moreover, it rests solely and finally with the mayor to gaant or refuse a license, with or without reason, as he may see fit. Another and important point is that the excise law prohibits the sale of intoxicants in the resorts thus defined. Mr. Grace has ordered the police to carry out his instructions, which is that no such entertainments shall be given unless licensed, and that in no case shall even the mildest form of beer be sold. The captains of precincts are nightly making arcaptains of precincts are nightly making ar-

The scope of this thing is vast. Every concert garden in which intoxicants are sold will have to be closed, from the fashionable casino and Central park to the vilest Chatham street cellar dive. Sparring and wrestling matches in saloons cannot take place. The use of so in saloons cannot take place. The use of so much as a piano in a musical way, or the balancing of a dumbbell for exercise, if done to amuse a gathering, is prohibited in a room where drinking is also done. It is calculated that not less than fourteen hundred concerns would be closed.

Of course, it is generally believed that Mayor Grace begins in contention of enforcing so great a reform. The theory is that he is merely going to grasp a larger political power merely going to grasp a larger political power than any one man ever held in New York before. Hitherto, the police board and the excise board, along with the police justices, have divided the benefits accruing from the uon enforcement of the liquor laws. Every salcon keeper had to put himself under the protection of some district polit-ical leader, who demanded in return strict ical leader, who demanded in return strict fealty to his faction at election times. As there are ten thousand licensed bars, tais army of political workers is powerful. In ease eny runseller undertook to be independent, he soon found himself under arrest for doing tusiness in forbidden hours. Each party had its representative in the police and arcise its representative in the police and excise boards, and it was their duty to see that their respective divisions of the alcoholic army were protected. This related to what are denominated respectable saloons. The victous places had to pay heavily in cash tribute, ostensibly for campaign funds, but largely for something much more like black-mail. Thus the control of the whole liquor interest was split up among many officehold-ers. But under the supreme court decision Mayor Grace can absorb it all. He wishes to be re-elected next fall. The legislature can-not in the meantime modify the laws, and he not in the meantime modify the laws, and he can therefore sweep himself into a third term easily. That is the accepted idea. In the meantime, the beer resorts of every description are awfully perturbed, and a readjustment of matters is anxiously awaited.

CAMPBELL AND DION.

The Condition of Two Well Known Person

ages Now in Bloomingdale.

NEW YORK, July 10.—[Special.]—A party of friends of the demented billiardist, Joseph Dion, went to the Bloomingdale asylum to see him. They found him in the billiard room of him. They found him in the billiard room of that institution, at play with Bartley Campbell, the insane dramatist. These two patients are doomed to die of progressive softening of the brain, and alike their chief symptom, physically, is paresis, or an inability to control their motions. For instance, neither can now legibly write his name. Thus hindered, their billiard below were seen the control of the control of the control of the control of their motions. play was necessarily erratic. A match was proposed and the irrational contestants at once began. Each was perfectly confident, and their wild talk, often branching off to utterly foreign subjects, was a steady accompaniment of their shots. In health, Campbell had been a reasonably good player; but now his efforts were more awkward and futile than those of a beginner. Curious interest centered in the game of the once expert Dion. It was strangea beginner. Curious interest centered in the game of the once expert Dion. It was strangely uneven. Once in a while several successive shots were positively brilliant, and especially was this so when the position of the balls, striking his mind at a glance, was instantly comprehended and acted upon. If he delayed at all in deciding what caroms to undertake, his mind lost all continuity of thought, and he used his one in a dazed, ridiculous manner. The same peculiarity was observable in his lack of complete control of nerves and muscles. If he made a shot quickly it was apt to be sure and steady; but a delay resulted in utter confusion and failure. All through the strange game Dion maintained the most diguified demeanor, and was seemingly unaware that his play was not as good as ever. He fancied part of the time that Campbell was some noted billiardist, now Vignauga, again Daly, and so on through the whole list of champions; and once he declared that the match was for the possession of the asylum, which he believed to be a royal palace in Spain. He is not expected to live more than a year. Campbell's time is thought to be still shorter.

SEEKING THE TRUTH.

How to Train Up a Child in the Way in Which he Should Go.

Our first parents had much to excuse them for spoiling their first born. Without model, without knowledge or the means for acquiring it, what d have been expected of them? But they were not too dull to learn of that hard master, experience, and they trained up Abel in the way he should go.

Love of children and love of truth are the two he should go.

Love of children and love of truth are the two grand and equally requisite qualifications for the training of youth. The former is essential to the existence of the race. Take it away and the human species would soon be extinct. Without love of offspring every child, as soon as born, would be cast away and left to perish.

This first requisite, nature has amply supplied. How about the love of truth? How about obedience to that command on which hang so many others and so much of habit and of character? "Happy is the man whose habits are his friends!" The sweetness of lip that never told a falsehood—what Crosus, has wealth that can buy it? The glad and gladdening laugh of innocence—what magic has power to retain it? The only edictent power is example—example of parents, of Sabbath school feachers, of every day teachers. This supplies an object lesson that wins universal attention.

An eminent divine once remarked, that since he had them of his own to manage, he had ceased to lecture others on training children. Practice fell short of theory, yet he gathered rich points from his efforts for others, for a better trained family than his could hardly be found.

But not to instinctive love alone, strong as that maybe, is left the care of parents for their offspring. It summons all the nobler faculties of the soul to become its allies. It calls the love of truth to inspire them to follow up all those avenues of knowledge, by means of which a wise head may be brought to aid and guide a warm and brave heart.

It invokes the force and guidance of conscience, which meas them to do and suffer all for the knowledge, by means of which a wise head may be brought to aid and guide a warm and brave heart.

It invokes the force and guidance of conscience, which urges them to do all and suffer all for the make of the child. For every neglect, conscience expostulates, mourns, threatens. Selfishness in the parent says to the child, "you owe all you have ato me." Conscience on the contrary, makes him may, "I owe all my powers to you; I am the cause of your being here; I have struck out a spark that shall glow forever in celestial effulgence, or with baleful fires; I am the author of all your capacities for happiness or for misery; and all that can be done by mortal means is mine to do.

Another exalted power of the soul, benevolence, is chilisted by love of offspring. This is that god-like tentiment that rejoices in the joys, and anifers in the sufferings of others. By this power, the soul for the sufferings of others. By this power, the souls of others, and finds its happiness in enhancing and prolonging their pleasures, in removing or sooth lug the r pain. Of all abodes into which the warm heart of benevolence immigrates, it find its readiest welcome and sweetest home in the heart of the child.

Another sentiment, the strongest feeling that ever comes to arouse our dormant faculties from their sulliv repose, the sense of duty to God, the religious sentiment, comes to ald parental affection. This warms you that your children are as sure to be influenced by the example you set before them as they are to adopt their mother tongue. It may be you that, without unceasing vigilance, guided by almost infinite wisdom, your cry of "Oh, where is my boy tonight," may become more bitter than that of Realet weeping for her children-because the fill above all things to seek the truth, and to be governed by love.

THEOSOPHY EXPLAINED. The Aura which Surrounds the Body Turned Into a Travelling Chariot. Boston Record.

Taking the broad fact of mind and matter having been adjudged separate in titles or states of being, the theosophist proceed to bulld upon this stated fact. They claim that while the body-lies sleeping, or inert through trance, the soul, by which they mean the mind, or will, is capable of which they mean the mind, or will, is capable of travelling to distant places, noting events, holding converse, ere she, the soul, returns to her waiting and unconscious body. A theosophist speaks of his "astral body," of its power to visit those places which hissoul, or mind, or will, has previously determined upon visiting.

To mention the conditions first, theosophists state that an "sura" surrounds them, not only the

To mention the conditions first, theosophists state that an "aura" surrounds them, not only theophoist in particular, but all people. "Aura" is a species of atmosphere impregnated with the electrical essences, animal magnetism or chemical gases that our bodies are constantly discharging; this, encountering the ordinary air, is not dispelled or disseminated, as might be naturally expected; but to call it human essence for the sake of illustration, this discharged human essence gathers to itself a certain; portion of the ordinary air that surrounds us, which it permeates with our own lesires and vitality; therefore it will be seen that this aura is always with us, and ready for all emergencies.

this aura is always with us, and ready for all emergencies.

The way that transference is effected is that a theosophist wishing to appear in a distant city or foreign land, seeks seclusion, and then bends the whole force of his mind upon the desire to reach that place. Finally, he either falls asleep or succumbs to a self induced trance. During the sleep or trance the body lends a portion of its vitality, or more correctly, a certain portion having been ejected by the will, the soul is enabled to clothe herself in the waiting aura, and thus become an astral body, an exact counterpart of the sleeping one, and then proceedupon her aerial journey.

PINKNEY, AUUHOS OF "THE SCHOOL MA'AM OF GOOD LUCK."

[Copyrighted, 1886, by 8, 8, McClure.] A few angry words, not absorbing ten min utes in the saying, and Beth Griffith and Will Marshall had parted, each felt forever.

And the quarrel was all about Tom Loner gan, whom Beth was scarce nearer loving than was Will himself, only that he, in his blind jealousy, could not see it, and she, with her ingry pride, would not explain. For Tom Lonergan was the only son of one of Colorado's cattle kings, a man whose herds ran his wealth up into the millions; while Will was only a young lawyer, struggling to gain a footing in Denver, his income largely made up of hope. And Tom, though coarse of manner and unprepossessing of aspect, could enhance his attentions to his favored lady friends by a lavishness of expense that was positively sickening to impecunious Will, as he saw the torrent of books, flowers, and bonbors that suddenbegan pouring into the Griffith parlor. The happy son of Crosus, moreover, frankly beastful, declared his intention of establishing his bride, when he should marry, in a style of splendor calculated to astonish all

Denver; while for more than a year now Will and Beth had been planning when they might afford the modest little suburban cottage, be-yond which their wildest dreams had never dared venture. No would if the dared venture. No wonder if she was tired of waiting for so poor a lot, nor that she should wistfully consider the brilliant future Tom Lonergan could give her. True she had never hinted a weariness of the long engagement; nor could Will accuse her of openly encouraging the richer lover, but there were Lonergan's flowers always fresh in the parlor. "I am tired of seeing the tracks of that golden calf!" he petulantly remarked.

"If you mean the flowers, I think they are very lovely tracks, and I'm not tired of them in the least." Beth good naturedly retorted.
"Nor of the calf itself very evidently!" exclaimed Will, with increased irritation.
"I don't think it is very nice of you to speak of Mr. Lonergan in that way," playfully eproving,

"You cannot yourself speak of him as a gen-

"He is too much of a gentleman to say hateful, sarcastic things of people behind their backs." flashed Beth, growing angry in turn. "And sufficiently a gentleman, considering all his beef, to have all, the girls in Denver running after him!" It was a vicious innuendo to throw at her, as he realized the instant the words were out of his mouth; but he had wrought himself up to a furious temper and would not retreat a syllable.

What do you mean to imply by that remark?" the girl demanded, with icy calm, although he could see her hands trembling in

"I mean that your flirtation with Lonergan considering that you have been engaged to considering that you have been engaged to considering the too far," cried Will notly. "Because I have said nothing before, you are not by any means to suppose that I have been blind. I have seen it all. Heaven have been blind. I have seen it all. Heaven knows what your motive has been. It may have been a childish vanity to exhibit your grand conquest to the envy of the other girls, or perhaps it was—" here Will hesitated, turning a little rale—"it may have been simply the deliberate calculation of a mercenary woman. I won't insult you by assuming that you could by any possible chance, fall in love with the man," ith the man."
"After I had once owned to falling in love with you it could hardly insult me to assume anything as to my weak susceptibility!" cried Beth with angry sarcasm. "By which you mean me to understand that you have repented," said poor Will, with tragic calm

"Your penetration does you credit," she tartly acquiesced.
"Good-by," cried he, making for the door.
"Good-by, sir," said she, taking up Lonergan's bouquet and coolly smelling the roses.

And so they parted.
As Will entered his room that night he found a letter thrust under his door. It was from the manager of a cattle company with whom he had been corresponding, trying to obtain a situation as cowboy during the approaching spring roundup for a young friend at the cast, for whom the doctors had prescribed life in the open air. A letter received that morning had announced that the lad had gone with a surveying party to New-Mexico; and now it appeared there was an opening for the proposed cowboy, who was refound a letter thrust under his door. It was

Mexico; and now it appeared there was an opening for the proposed cowboy, who was requested to report for duty on the coming 14th of May. It was now the 11th; and Will perceived there was scant time for the company to find a substitute. Suddenly he became possessed of a strange idea. Why should he not go as a cowboy in the place of his friend—plunge into a new, wild life that might help him to forget the sharp pain now tugging at his heart? The opening seemed providential. And thus three days later found our hero attired as a cowboy to the manner born, at a certain small railway station in Eastern Col-

ranch.

It was three miles away, across a dreary waste of sage brush, cactus, and alkali. Tormented with gnats and embarrassed by his heavy boots and unaccustomed chaparrafes—stout leather breeches with fingers up the side, generally called "chaps" for short—three times three miles Will fancied he had folled before the ranch was gained.

The crowd of cowboys lounging about the place all roused themselves to look the stranger over with good-humored nonchalance, and one directed him to where the foreman was. And here was a shock for which our here was wholly unprepared. The foreman here was wholly unprepared. The foreman was Tom Lonergan.

"How came you here?" stammers Will, halting, thunderstruck.
"The same to yourself!" the other good-humoredly retorted, but with a certain sharpness of glance that conveyed no enthusiastic welcome of his guest. "I'm the foreman of the outfit for this trip; that's all. My father's the silent partner of the concern; see? Now, what brought you here?"

Somewhat incoherently Will explained about his friend and the young fellow's change of his friend and the young fellow's change of plans, and his idea of going out himself for the trip. "Good scheme!" cried Lonergan, with a grin that did not seem altogether void of malice. "Of course you've been cow punching

Will admitted that he had not, wherenpon the foreman laughed loud and long.
"But you'll catch on all right," he declared, encouragingly. As Will walked away he felt that unbearable trouble had fallen upon him. To go on, in the company of this man he hated, seemed for the moment impossible. Yet to go back seemed equelly out of the question. And, although qually out of the question. And, although he hated Tom Lonergan, he presently reminded himself, with returning reason, he had no assurance that his ugly feeling was reciprocated. His engagement to Beth had never been made public, and quite likely Lonergan had never given two thought; to a rival so insignificant. Quite likely, Will told himself with reviving courage, he should find the man no more disagreeable than any one of the fourteen others in the outfit. There was a certain satisfaction, moreover, in the prospect certain satisfaction, moreover, in the prospect of thus having the fellow under his own eye for a time, to be assured that he was not at Beth's feet in person. How altogether at the mercy of Tom Lonergan he was to be for the weeks to come he could not for a moment con-

He was soon to gain an insight into the auocracy of the cattle company; and it was cromptly evident that he was not to be a avorite of fortune during the round-up of 'S5. When, after a few days, the distribution of horses was made, each man, as is usual, receiving seven as his "string," it was found that nobody was so unlucky as Will Marshall. That his seven were possessed of seven devils apiece he was fully persuaded. Time and again he was thrown; and, though never seriously injured, he was yet constantly sore and lame from the wild anties of which he was the daily victim. And when anything pecu-liarly disagreeable was to be done it appeared inevitable that Marshall should come in for a share. He could not accuse the foreman of maliciously uventing work to give him trouble. Nothing that she was called upon to do but was a legitimate duty devolving up-on somebody of the outlit to perform. All the same it was evident that Marshall was no favorite, It was as well. He would have felt like a snesk accepting favors from this man

The company moved slowly along the course of the South Platte river, camping at frequent intervals. When in camp, Will's duty was generally on the "horse-carry," with a couple of others, driving the horses out on a couple of others, driving the horses out on the plains, and then herding them while they grazed. It was pleasant work when the weather was fine, with the beautiful Colorado sky smiling over all, and the dull brown plains taking on a tender tinge of green in the golden sunshine.

Almost happy then was Will as he idly rede about, giving himself up to thoughts of Beth.

A small, sweet hope had stolen into his heart.

A small, sweet hope had stolen into his heart. If Lonergan were her accepted lover, why was he leaving her for these long weeks of the round-up? It could not be. It was all a miserable mistake that some day her own sweet lips might explain away. But hope only belonged to the pleasant days; and; alas! it most often rained. Then, cold, wet and wretched, he remembered the odor of Lonergan's roses, and her angry eyes as she said good by.

Soon they began "riding on circle," gathering up the cattle in the country through which they passed, and driving the herd along with them as they moved. This involved night herding; and Will's life became more of a burden. The night was divided similarly to the watches on shipboard, four reliefs of two men each, following was divided similarly to the watches on ship-board, four reliefs of two men each, following each other from dark till dawn. Will was as-signed a place on the fourth relief, going on at two o'clock, when his day's work now 'practically began, since his rest for the night was ended. After the day of hard labor that made even the cowboy bed upon the ground a luxury, no fate could have seemed more cruel than that which pulled him out in the chill darkness for those tedious hours of herding before the dawn.

A cold rainy day had come and well night gone. As was their wont after supper, the boys sat smoking around the camp fire, telling stories—"swapping lies," as their own slang expressed it—and enjoying, with what spirit they might, their coarse jokes, when they were startled with the information that the cattle must be driven forthwith to the river, ten miles away. As had come to be a matter of course, Will Marshall was the first man or course, will marsail was the first man named for the unwelcome duty.

It had ceased raining, but a chill, damp wind was blowing, promising a disagreeable night. There were four to drive, however, the way was down hill and toward water with the wind blowing in their favor, so that the cattle readily followed the trail, and their progress was comparatively easy. But it was progress was comparatively easy. But it was late and very dark when at length they reached their destination, and according to orders turned the cattle loose to be gathered up by the riders along the river next day. As they turned back toward camp not the keepest of human eyes could have discerned the trail, and the wind had died away in a keenest of human eyes could have discerned the trail, and the wind had died away in a foggy stillness that gave no sugges-tion of the course they should take; but they trusted themselves to the instinct of their horses and rode confidently along. Now and then a glow of lightning would for a moment illumine the scene, disclosing the miles of billowy plains stretching drearily before them, and then the after darkness before them, and then the after darkness would seem more dense; and sometimes would come a little sprinkle on their faces and they would pull their hat brims further down and essay to spur on the jaded horses. Cold, wet, and utterly wearied they rode along with the stoical endurance born of necessity, the muttering of distant thunder and the beating of their horses' hoofe upon the segar, would the their horses' hoofs upon the soggy ground the only sounds. Scarce conscious of cold or wet was Will Marshall, hugging to his heart his thoughts of Beth, for it had come about that rarely for an instant was she out of his mind. He was vague-ly conscious that dreamily wrapt in his ten-der fancies he was, as it were, clothed in an armor, against which the hard blows of his daily life fell harmless. His whole thought now was of when he might go back to her and beg again the love that was as his life. dared not go yet—he must give her time to forget his suspicion and hateful words, and to remember the old-time love. It was this fan-cied necessity for delay that made the cowboy life endurable; one occupation was as good as another since it was simply to serve at killing time until he might venture back to her. And as he rode along through the darkness, so in-tense that one seemed almost pushing a way through it as he went, his staring eyes seemed looking into her sweet face, not coldly augry, as last he saw it, but luminous with love and tender welcome.

A cold spiash of rain on his cheek, startling his reverie as though it had been the touch of a departing soul as it hurried away from earth, roused him at length; and shaking himself, as it were, awake, he dug spurs into his horse and, calling to his companions to hurry, dashed recklessly away over the rough ground.

Suddenly he noticed that he heard but the sound of one horse's hoofs. Instantly he stopped, loudly calling the boys by name; but the deathly silence of the night only anbut the deathly silence of the night only answered that he was alone, lost upon the plains. Absorbed in his sweet fancies, he had let the herse carry him on, while the others, who knew the country, had turned off into some other trail—who could say how far back? That the instinct of the horse had allowed him to go astray was almost incredible. He was plainly one of the foolish ones of his kine; and Will promptly pronounced his rider another.

Again and again he halloed with all his might with no result, and, thoroughly disheartened, he turned the horse's head and rode back at a snail's pace, wearily pondering what he should do. Not the faintest ides ha'd he in which way was the camp nor in what direction ran the river, where he might hope to run acress some ranch house.

Remembering presently a bit of Indian cunning, he diamounted and listened with his ear to the ground only to hear those inarticulate murmurings of nature that are never stilled. To his strained senses it seemed that he could fairly hear the wrowing of the grass, but there was no sound of human kind.

fairly hear the wrowing of the grass, but there was no sound of human kind.

An hour or more went by in profitless wandering this way and that, now turned by the fancied direction of the unpalpable wind, or again by some trail that seemed to hold out hope as revealed by the lightning. At length the horse seemed 'impatient to move faster, and Will gave him his head, thinking the chances as good one way as another. The animal now went on at a brisk trot, presently quickening into a lope, occasionally sniffling the air and neighing loudly as if calling to his kind, until after a time it occurred to poor kind, until after a time it occurred to poor Will, with a stupefying sense of despair, that the beast had scented a herd of wild horses and was making toward them.

They were moving over a very rough country, going up hill and down, and Will decided, quite likely getting further astray with every moment. There was the choice of continuing moment. There was the choice of continuing to give the horse his head, with the prospect of spending the night in the saddle, or of camping where he was and waiting for morning to get his bearings and start anew.

He chose the latter alternative. Dismounting the choice of the continuous contraints the choice of the contraints the choice of the choice ing, therefore, and searching out with his feet a place that seemed free from cactus, he fastena place that seemed free from cactus, he fasten-ed one end of his lariat around the horse's neck and, driving him a little way off, lay himself down across the rope, prone upon his stomach, that if the horse attempted to get away the dragging of the rope under his body would promptly awaken him—"sleeping on the rope," in cowboy phrase. Worn out, as he was, there was a small sense of comfort in lyng down, even upon the cold, wet ground, and te was soon asleep.

It was then that he experienced the wonderful dream-if it were a dream-that forever ended his career as a cowboy.

He thought that he slept till morning. His hat brim was pulled well over his eyes, but as he lay heavily on his side, seemingly soaked in drowsiness, he was dimly conscious of the surshine pleasantly warming his chin and nose. He could hear the satisfied muching of the horse as he cropped the short grass, often tugging impatiently at the rope; and the note tugging impatiently at the rope; and the note of a meadow lark sounded sweet and clear. Presently he seemed to hear the steps of a second horse, and, languidly opening his eyes, felt petrified with astonishment to see the f. reman, Tom Lonergan, throwing himself from the saddle. Powerless Will felt to stir or utter a sound, only dully staring from the shadow of his wide hat, while by some strange new power he seemed reading the thoughts in the mind of this man who stood reserving him with a look of deadly between regarding him with a look of deadly hatred.
In his hands Lonergan was nervously twirl-

In his hands Lonergan was nervously twirling his "quirt," the cowboy's short leathern whip, with buttend deadly loaded; and he seemed to be saying within himself: "One quick blow—easy as killing a rattlesnake!—and he is done with forever! It will seem that he was thrown—this horse has thrown him before. No one will think of connecting me with it. And she—ah! I must have her."

But a strange white mist had seemed to be forming before Lonergan; and now it was assuming shape as a woman's garment, clothing forming before Lonergan; and now it was assuming shape as a woman's garment, clothing a woman's form. The vision was turned from Will, but it was strangely familiar; and, as the cruel quirt was flercely raised to strike, he knew the fair white hands that grasped the murderer's arm; nor was he surprised to see the wild hok on Lonergan's face as if he had seen a ghost, while he cried aloud in horror: "Beth!" The fair shape seemed then to turn toward Will, its face full of love, and holding out arms with a gesture eloquent of caressing tenderness; but now the heavy quirt, dropped from Lonergan's nerveless hand, seemed to fall with a stinging blow upon Will's head, and the vision was blotted out.

The sun was high when he awoke at last, sitting up with a queer pain in his head, and titing up with a queer pain in his head, and a curious sense of weakness. Was it a dream? or had he really been struck with Tom Lonergan's quirt? And had his love really come ergan's quirt? And had his love really come in spirit to save his life?

Practical, prosaic, Will Marshall felt sadly at sea and bewildered as he dizzily got upon his feet and looked about him. There was nothing suggesting mystery or fair spirits about the dull plains, roughened with cactus all bursting into bud under the warm June sunghine. Clearly he had been wildly dreaming and real this stance and in his head!

ing, and yet this strange pain in his head!
He seemed curiously stupid and benumbed, beyond the power of surprise when, by and by, he noticed the smoke of a camp fire rising from a gully not a quarter of a mile away, and mounting his horse it seemed scarce a matter for gratulation that he should presently discover the tents of the outfit and soon be in camp, The instinct of the horse had led him right after all, Will duly considered; and he let himself give up discouraged within a quarter of a mile of his goal. But it did not matter, he apathetically argued; nothing mattered.

He left the outfit that morning, walking seven miles across the country, guided only by the broiling sun, to reach the railroad, when he was picked up, more dead than alive, by a frelght train and carried into Denver. He was used up to the verge of sickness, and Beth's sweet face, as he had seen it in his dream, drew him to her by an irresistable force. Lonergan did not appear surprised; but he was altogether cool and unembarrassed when Will announced his intention of going. Surely it was all a dream.

Surely it was all a dream.

A few days later as he sat with his arm around his recovered treasure, Beth shame-facedly hid her face on his shoulder and con-were growing cold and indifferent."

"I 'cold and indifferent?" O, Beth!"

"And I wanted to tesse you just a little, to see if you really cared."

"And heaven grant you were sufficiently satisfied never to try it again!" devoutly retorted the victim of the experiment.

"Tom Lonergan has always been firting with two or three girls at a time, and it never entered my head to think him in earnest until the day after you and I quarreled, when he came and proposed to me. And then I hated him, and I told him so. I gloried in telling him that I loved you and only you. I was wild with my own pain and it made me cruel to him. I faidy loathed him as the cause of our trouble—but of course it was my fault—all my wretched folly and wickedness!" Will was softly comforting her with kisses.

"And the other morning I had such a strange dream, dear. I had been nervous

"And the other morning I had such a strange dream, dear. I had been nervous and wakeful all night, thinking of the hardships and dangers cowboys go through, and that you were enduring all because of my childish folly. I had cried until I seemed to have no tears left, to think how powerless I was that I did not know where to send a letter to beg you to come back, By and by the crazy idea came to me that I might go and find you myself; and so my mind was rapidly wandering, when at length I fell asleep. And then I dreamed I had found you. You seemed to be lying on the ground asleep, while standing over you, with a look of deadly hatred, was Tom Lonergan. It was all so wonderfully real. He seemed to raise his arm to strike, and I rushed forward and seized his wrist, while pale as if he had seen a ghost he staggered back, calling my name. And then with a scream I woke up, trembling with fright. It was horrible!" clinging to him with a terrified shudder at the remembrance.

As if he, too, had been a ghost, Will Mar shall was wildly staring.

"When—when did you say, Beth?"

"It was Wednesday morning," staring in turn, surprised at his tore.

"The very day!" cried Will, amazed. "O my darling! my angel!" holding her close to his heart. "Thank God that you went to me even if it were only a dream."

SENATE SECRETS.

SENATOR RIDDLEBERGER CREATES A SENSATION.

He Attacks Meesrs. Edmunds and Ingalis on the Assertion that a Trade Had Been Made Be-tween Certain Republican Senators and Mr. Goode-Washington Gossip.

B WASHINGTON, July 10.—[Special.]—Senator Riddleberger created a sensation today by sailing into Senators Edmunds and Ingalls. The occasion of his attack was found in some remarks he was making in favor of abolishing the secret sessions of the senate. He charged that Mr. Edmunds had declared in open session that he had letters to prove that a trade had been made between Solicitor General Goode and certain republican officials who had agreed to use their influence to secure Mr. Goode's confirmation, and after making this declaration had failed to produce these alleged letters in secret session. Mr. Riddleberger said the executive sessions are constantly used as shields to such hypocrisy.

Mr. Irgalls put in his oar and accused the Virginia Free Lance of talking of executive secrets. Mr. Riddleberger turned on him in a bluff way and ordered him to take his seat. This off-hand reply was a sort of knock down to the cynical Kansan, whose weapons in debate are the most refined sarcasm and the meanest inuendo.

It transpires that in the executive session yesterday Mr. Edmunds made some allusion to the alleged letters from Mr. Goode to the republicans and that Mr. Riddleberger said: "You have hinted at that before. I don't believe you have any such letters. You cannot substantiate the statement you have just made, and you knew you could not when you

Mr. Goode's friends think the president may reappoint him after the senate adjourns, basing the reappointment on the ground that Mr. Goode's rejection was brought about by the personal spite of one man, Mahone. The president's sympathies are entirely with Mr. Goode, and the most cordial relations exist between them. This rejection of Mr. Goode at the dictation of the skinny little boss from Virginia will react in Mr. Goode's favor with the democrats of that state. He is already pamed as the most probable successor to Mr.

Riddleberger in the senate. A SURPRISED APPLICANT. Judge Reagan, of Texas, recently succeeded in engineering through congress a resolution to appropriate $3,500 of the people's money to the legal representative of the late doorkeeper, James G. Wintersmith, of the house of representatives. The legal representative in whose interest this resolution was introducted, and who was referred to in eloquent terms in this report, was Dick Wintersmith, the father of Jan Wintersmith. Mr. Dick Wintersmith has been connected with the lobby in Washington for several years past, and came into especial prominence not long ago by reason of the publication of a remarkable letter of his to Dr. Rogers, conveying in the most lurid terms, his thanks for a gift of Pan-Electric stock. Today Mr. Wintersmith called at the treasury to get the thirty-five hundred dollars to which he considered himself entitled under the Reagan resolution. He was startled by the anclaimant for the money ahead of him. A woman had only an hour or two before presented herself as the widow of James G. Wintersmith and claimed the money. Mr. Dick Wintersmith indignantly denied that his son was ever married, but he was told that the alleged widow had asserted her readiness to prove her title to the money by indisputable evidence, that she is Mrs. J. THE PENSION BILLS.

Pension Bills.

WASHINGTON, July 10 .- In the senate, Mr. Blair, from the committee on pensions, submitted a report on twenty-three pension bills veteed by the president, and recommending that the bills be passed, notwithstanding the president's objections. In reply to a question by Mr. Kenna, Mr. Blair stated that the veto messages had been, (by an order of the commessages had been, (by an order of the commessages had been (by an order of the committee) referred to members who had originally reported the bills. In accordance with that order, he made this report.

Mr. Camden read a paper signed by himself, Messis. Colquitt, Wilson, of Maryland, and Whittherne, (democratic members of the committee on pensions.) denving any knowledge of Mr. Blair's report or of the order referred to. The report did not present the views of the committee on these vetoed bills but only the views of Henry W. Blair. The reasons assigned by the president in vetoing each of these bills separately, did not call for gross criticism or for the censure of the senate.

Mr. Blair asked Mr. Camden whether any of the senators who had signed that paper had examined any of the bills before or after the vete, and he answered the question himself by asserting that they had not

Mr. Teller sustained the motion and said

Mr. Blair consented to recommit and the matter was accordingly recommitted, Mr. Blair giving notice that he would call it up next giving notice that Tuesday morning.

The senate resumed the calendar.

In this bill there were appropriations to the amount of $5,000,000 which could be characterized by no other term except that of "boodle"—five millions that would be fliched from the treasury for the purpose of making men "stropg" in their districts at home. He commented upon the fact that out of $2,800,-00 increase in this bill, as reported by the senate committee on commerce, nearly two millions was for states which had members on that committee. That, he said, could not be a coincidence.

Representative Morrison's report on the Kandall bill says:

The bill proposes to remove all internal taxes on totacco, stuff at d cigars amounting on the basis of last years receipts to $28,000,000; on apple, peach and grape brandy to $1,400,000; on spirits for use in the arts, variously estimated at from $7,000,000 to $15,000,000, and believed to be at least $10,000,000, making in the aggregate of internal revenue taxes to be renoved $39,400,000. In the appendix of estimates submitted with the bill as a part of it, the reduction of reverue from customs on tariff taxes to be affected by it is estimated at $8,570,576 making the aggregate of proposed reductions $48,000,000.

Apparently the bill was presented in the belief that a necessity existed for a reduction, not of taxes, but of revenues, and that the desired end is reached, both through higher and lower taxes. The estimates with the bill are made on this arbitrary assumption, and are entitled to no respect-whatever.

The report then proceeds to consider the Randall bill in detail and says:

The estimated and intended effect of the bill are believed to make plain methods by which taxation, on the basis of imports and sevenue receipts in 1885, would yelld $14,000,000 of revenue, and be made to divert that sum from public purposes to private gain. The introduction of this bill would be considered the first avowed attempt in our legislative history to empty the treasury for the use of the taxing power. If this measure may be supposed to have any purpose relating to the system of finance, it points to direct taxation when internal revenue taxes are taken off and custom house taxes are laid on so high that the people get the burden, the monopolists the benefit and the treasury nothing. A new process of supply will be inevitable, and the measure is not supposed to foreshadow any such system or to do more than indicate the mind unlearned in methods and unmindful of results.

Senator Mahone Averse to Retirement from Public Life-His Ambition to Go to Congress-Con-gressman's John Anderson's Sad Defeat-Ex-Governor Curtin the Nomines.

WASHINGTON, July 10.—[Special.]—Senator Mahone has no idea of retiring from public life at the expiration of his senatorial term, which happy event will occur on the 4th of March next. It is said that he means to run for congress in the Petersburg district this fall. That district is now represented by his man Brady, but be can if he chooses brush Brady saide and take the republican nomination himself. The district has a republican majority of four or five thousand, and Mahone calculates on an easy victory. Various difficulties, however, will beset him. The most formidable of these is represented by ex-Governor Cameron. Cameron was the best and brightest fellow who went off with the re-adjustors in Virginia. He is superior to Mahone and John Wise in every good sense. After Mahone had aided him to secure the governorship he expected to rule him, as he rules- every one with whom he has any political affiliation. Cameron resented Mahone's dictation and a rupture occurred which has intensified into a hitter fend. Cameron never went to and a rupture occurred which has intensified into a bitter feud. Cameron never went to the extremes that Mahone adopted for political advantage and always managed to retain in a large degree the respect of the better elements in the state. War to the knife has been declared between him and his old chief. Should Mahone make the race for congress himself Cameron will run against him as an independent candidate with the support of the democrats and a large element of the readjuster-republican party. He is more than a match for Mahone on the stump and is too plucky to be builled by the skinny little boss. Since Cameron went out from the governor's office his associations have been mainly with demohis associations have been mainly with demo-crats. Many of his old friends believe that he will come back into complete affiliation with the party cut of which his ambition for swift promotion led him a few years ago. Mahone loves Washington life. His inordinate vanity is gratified at the notoriety he has achieved here. He is reluctant to leave the arena on here. He is reluctant to leave the arena on which he has performed such queer antics and scoper than de so he will gladly step from the senate to a seat at the other end of the capitol. He will find that transit a hard one to make. Hitherto the national patronage has been at his disposal and he has been largely aided by republican money, drawn from the north on the assurance that he was converting Virginia into a reliably republican state. Both these sources of help are now closed to him. He has no offices to distribute, and the crushing defeat of his henchman, John Wise, by Fitzhugh Lee has demonstrated how idle were submitted with the bill as a part of it, the reduction of reverue from customs on tariff taxes to be affected by it is estimated at $8,570,576 making the aggregate of proposed reductions $48,000,000. The bill to so reduce excessive revenues and the statement that there were no excessive revenues to be reduced, were submitted to the house by the same member in the same half month. If the statement that the revenues will not exceed the appropriations and estimate with the bill including loss of receipts from brandy and from spirits for use in arts, may be credited, the enactment of this bill into a law will leave the government $48,000,000 short of the sum necessary to the administration of the government and the requirements of the public debt authorized by law, including debts incurred by the payment of pensions already allowed, the validity of which we dere not question, and the payment of which is enjoined upon us in the oath we have taken to support the constitution. Your committee, unwilling to credit a purpose so lacking in patriotism, so forgetful of the public faith, must believe these and other provisions of the bill to be the result of a fiscal distemper hindering a just comprehension and intelligent treatment of the subject. In view of its effect and purpose, so far as it has the purpose of affecting the revenue of the government, the bill might well be left to that neglect which, no doubt, it was expected to receive. But in the hope that even so unwise a measure may open the way for the majority to redeem its piedges by the removal and reduction of unnecessary, and therefore unjust, taxes your committee report the bill back with the recommendation that it do not pass. The bill changes then one-tenth ($17,070,000) ont of $181,000,000 received from customs in 1885. It increases those which yielded $11,600,600 and decreases or removes the duty or rate of tax on articles yielding less than one-tenth ($17,070,000) on the basis of import for 1885. It does not reduce the revenue is estimated in the bill to ring defeat of his henchman, John Wise, by Fitzhugh Lee has demonstrated how idle were his boasts of mantaining the power which circumstance and accident threw into his hands. Mahone cannot hope to be a considerable political factor in Virginia hereafter outside of his own congressional district, and even there his enemies are whetting their tomahawks to take his scalp the first time he pops up his ugly little head.

A DEMAGOGUE'S DEFEAT.

The demagogue is often short sighted. Honesty is the best policy in politics as in other affairs. The attitude of Congressman John A. Anderson, of Kansas, on the tariff has been very amusing for several years past. John A. Anderson, of Kansas, on the tariff has been very amusing for several years past. Anderson thought he had detected a decided tendency toward low tariff among his constituents. He desired to accommodate himself to this sentiment, and at the same time to preserve his standing with his party in Washington in its battles for protection. This effort resulted in some remarkable performances. Mr. Anderson would speak for his low tariff constituents and them vote with his high tariff republican associates. Two years ago he made an eloquent appeal for Two years sgo he made an eloquent appeal for the horizontal Morrison tariff bill and ten minutes afterwards voted to strike out its enacting clause. This agile uncertainty did not strike his constituents favorably. The congressional convention is his district the other day took strong ground for a protective tariff and determined state of the protective as in and determined to relieve Mr. Anderson of his arduous duties as a congressman. Only a few months ago he was a formidable candidate for the senatorial chair held by Senator Ingalls; now he is a de-feated aspirant for another term in the lower one of its most romantic and most interesting figures. Though past three score and ten the old gentleman has the physical and intellectual vigor of a man of fifty. His tall, erect figure is ever conspicuous among his three hundred and twenty-four fellow members. In the closk rooms and in the restaurant at the capitol he is a star attraction by reasen of his ready wit and his inexhaustible stock of good stories. His speeches in the house are always spiced with humor, and often rise to real eloquence. Twenty years ago he was the prince of stump orators and the old fire frequently returns in his latter day efforts. He is the choice of many Pennsylvania democrats as their candidate for governor and can have the momination if he wants it. The republicans have again put out General Beaver publicans have again put out General Beaver who was so unpopular three years ago as to cause the bolt which resulted in Governor Pattison's election. Some of the sanguine demo-crats think Beaver can be beaten again by a judicious nomination and an aggressive cam-paign. Chauncey Black, son of Joremiah S. B'ack, is a candidate for the democratic nomination, but his low tariff views weaken his chances. If Governor Curtin should be called on to lead the democrats he might be defeated, but he would make a ringing campaign and would bestir the party to put forth its best energies.

THE WESTERN UNION. A Heavy Verdict Against the Company-

Large Jury Fees. NEW YORK, July 10.—The jury in the case against the Western Union awarded a verdict for plaintiff for $240,000 damages. To the amount of the verdict the court granted an allowance of $2,000. Counsel for the Western Union company asked for a stay for the purchien company asked for a stay for the purpose of making a case on appeal, and the judge granted him a stay of 120 days, after the entry of judgment. not be relinguished in the face of four billions of war debts yet unpaid. The report then says:

This we do know—that of 28,000,000 people who do something: some work or are engaged in manful pursuits—18,000,000 of these earn on an average not much more than $300 a year, which is necessarily consumed in the means of subsistence; and now we are overtaken by, and are in the midst of, an industrial paralysis. A million of workmen are idle for want of work to do, and capital, in still greater proportion than unemployed labor, lies dead and unproductive. Our hills and mountains are full of mineral wealth. Millions of acres of productive lands wait for the plow. Homes for homeless millions are to be had for the taking. Favored with plential harvest, blessed with health, the only plague which afflicts us is idleness. What we need is profitable employment. There is an apparent puny effort in the bill, through an increase of taxation, to shut out goods from abroad that they may be made at home. If this effort was so successful as to prevent the importation of all manufactures, we would have direct taxation and three quarters of a million of men yet unemployed. Their probable employment amounts to nearly the difference between what is popularly known as good and hard times. The removal of the tobacco tax will chraits ho new employment. Neither its smoke nor its prices will turn a wheel, shaft or spindle. Wood, wool, hemp, salt, cheap food for toiling men, lie at the foundation of great and successful abore, and ourfidle men may thus be enabled to make something which may be sold profitably abroad, and with which we are overstocked at home.

Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, from the same committee, recorded back at versaly tha Commodore Truxton. Report of the New Orleans Exchange Upon Its Condition. NEW ORLEANS, July 10.-The national cotton exchange crop report for the mational cotton exchange crop report for the month for June, compiled by C. H. Parker, secretary, which has just been iasued, says:

The meteorological record of June, over the cotton belt is in striking contrast with that of the corresponding period of last year. The conditions have been abnormal over pretty nearly all the area east of the Mississippi.

Within these limits embracing about two Within these limits, embracing about twothirds of the entire average under cotton, the rainfall has been excessive, the temperature unfavorable and farm work has been retarded and over extensive districts almost entirely suspended for all practical purposes, causing the grass to grow luxuiantly and rendering necessary the abandonment of some lands in these states, embracing the Carolinas, Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi. The bottom lands particularly have suffered severely and fertile black lands have lost much of the prospect they had. Over most of these states the efrly springs was cold and a bad start was made. May conditions were not good, and June has again lowered them a little and rendered the cutcome more critical. Still over this area, embracing, as it does, so large a per centage of upland, with favorable conditions in July, and subsequently, that is seasonable showers, allowing farm work in cleaning out grass and sheence of hot dry weather to bake the saturated soil and scorch plants which have been rendered unhealthy by extreme moisture, there is room for improvement. It is to be noted that insect ravages, usually accompanying these meteorological conditions, have been alight and stands which were very good to start on, have not been impaired on that account. Over all this district, the crop is late, and therefore, exposed to the vicissitudes of the fall season. In the northern portion of the belt, however, Tennessee had a good start, and has held her own pretty well, and North Carolina is better than the coast district below her. Going west of the Mississippi, the situation is reserved. Over the great state of Texas, in Arkarsas and in Louisiana, the rains of June found the plants well rooted and the fields in excellent cultivation. These prospects have very much improved, and in Texas, particularly, the conditions have been very favorable, and her rating is nearly at par.

Following is condition by states: Virginia, 30: North Carolina. 75: thirds of the entire average under cotton, the rainfall has been excessive, the temperature rearly at par.

Following is condition by states: Virginia, 30; North Carolina, 79; South Carolina, 75; Georgia, 78; Florida, 91; Alabama, 75; Tennessee, 87; Arkansas, 80; Mississippi, 82; Louisisna, 80; Texas, 98. The average for the belt 33½ against 92 last year, and 35 the year before.

REPORT OF DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, WASHINGTON, July 10.-Cotton returns to washington, July 10.—Cotten returns to the department of agriculture for July 1st repre-sent the crops ten to fifteen days late; the low grounds saturated with the excessive rains of June; the general prevalence of aphis in such situations, and the smothering growth of grass and weeds. The drier uplands show a vigorous plant growth, and in full-handed plantations, clean cultivation. This description will apply to all states except Texas, Arkansas and Tennessee. There has been an improvement during June in these states, and a retrograde in all others. There will be a small area abandoned from inability to cultivate it, and some injury to plants will result in process of cleaning. The reduction in condition is mainly in North and South Carolina, Alabama and Mississippl. Georgia was reported low in June. The general average of condition is 86. It was 88.7 on the first of June last year, it was 96 in July, a gain of four points during June. The favorable weather in July with the prompt destruction of weeds may advance the condition, but further rains or long continued drouth would work serious injury to the crop. While a fair product may yet be possible east of the Mizsissippi, the condition of that portion of the crop may be considered somewhat critical.

the erop may be considered somewhat critical.

The averages by states is as follows: Virginia, 22; North Carolina, 81; South Carolina, 85; Georgia, 81; Alabama, 85; Mississippi, 79; Louisiana, 84; Texas, 97; Arkansas, 92; Tennessee, 98.

The screage of corn has very, slightly declined in the middle states, and in Maryland, Virginia and South Carolina, with some increase in other states of the south, which is largest west of the Mississippi. In the Ohio valley the acreage is nearly the same as in 1885. West of the Mississippi the increase is heavy; in Kansas 29 per cent.: Nebraska 10; Dakota 30. The total increase is 3½ per cent, or about two and a half million acres. Corn is late on the Atlantic coast, from wet weather, cold nights and slow germination. In many situations the seed rotted and replanting become necessary. Instances are reported of planting three times. Yet there is generally a fair state, and the crop is growing and healthy, and with seasonable July weather will make full yledd. It has suffered quite as much on the gulf coast, where wet areas are still more unpromising. Red lands generally bear vigorous growth, while in gray soils and bottoms the plants are yellowing and spindling. Some of the areas have already been abandoned. Some parts of Texas have been dry, but the abundant recent lains will suffice for good grows in eastern the plants are vellowing and spindling. Some of the areas have already been abandoned. Some parts of Texas have been dry, but the abundant recent rains will suffice for good crops in eastern and central counties. Arkansas shows a high condition, but Tennessee reports injury from low tem perature and excessive rain. The great corn bel of the west reports medium to high condition, growing better from Ohio to Kansas. Missouri valley averages better than the Ohio river and lake region. There is a full stand in Missouri, a vigorous and even growth, and tendays earlier than last year. Kansas returns are equally favorable. Insect injuries have nowhere been serious. The clinch bug is now threateaing some localities in the west. The general average is $5, against 94 last year and 96 in 1884. The state averages of the following states are: New York, $2; Pennsylvania, 88: Virginia, 93; Georgia, 92: Texas, $2; Kentucky, 91; Ohio, 93; Indiana, 95; Michigan, 96; Illinois, 97: Missouri, 101: Kansas, 102; Nebraska, 95; Iowa, 99.

THE ELECTION RETURNS CAUSE SOME SURPRISE.

Lord Trevelyan Defeated by a Gladstonian—i William Vernon Harcourt Says Home Rule of Some Sort Will be Granted to Ireland— News from All Parts of Europe,

London, July 10.—Right Hon. George Otto Trevelyan, who, with Chamberlain, resigned from the cabinet to oppose Gladstone's Irish policy, has been defeated as unionist candidate in Hawick for parliament. In the last election Trevelyan was returned as a liberal from Hawick without opposition. This year John Dillon stumped the district against him, denouncing him for his opposition to the premier's policy toward Ireland and pointing out the unreasonableness of Trevelyan's attitude LONDON, July 10 .- Right Hon. George Otto the unreasonableness of Trevelyan's attitude in view of the fact that he had been chief secretary for Ireland and by actual observation knew the merits of the issue. The result being that out of a total of 5,016 votes polled in Hawick burghs, A. L. Brown, the Gladstonian candidate, received a majority of 30 obtaining 2,523 to 2,493, secured by Trevelyan. The announcement of the result has produced a sensation throughout the country.

The liberals are now predicting that Lord Hartington will also be defeated by the Gladstone candidate in Rossendale, Lancashire. The election takes place next Monday. In the last election Lord next Monday. In the last election Lord Hartington was returned as a liberal by a majority of 1,832 in a total poll of 10,238. His opposition to the government's Irish policy induced the liberals to ask Michael Davitt to contest Rossendale. Davitt hesitated, and finally declined, assuming that Lord Hartington's attitude was purely patriotic and disinterested. Subsequently the liberals and Parneliltes found reason to suspect that Lord Hartington's opposition to the premier had an ulterior purpose, and at the last moment they determined to contest the district. Lord Hartington's opponents do not, however, make determined to contest the district. Lord Hartington's opponents do not, however, make public their reasons for believing they will be able to give him the fate of Trovelyan. The tories and unionists combined have beaten Timothy Healy, Parnellite, in south London, Thomas Lea, unionist candidate receiving 4,739 votes to Healy's 4,629. The entire poll was 6,366 votes, a falling off of 515 from the last election. Mr. Healy, however, increased his vote 860 over that he polled last year, but the liberals and tories combined on Lea, unionist, instead of dividing on tory and liberal as last year.

The tories have defeated the unionist candidates in the south, where J. Theobald, tory, is elected over J. Westlake, radical unionist. In Penrith, of Middle Cumberland, where J. W. Sir Wilfred Lawson by a majority of 600; and in Strond, or Middie Gloucestershire, where G. Halleway takes the seat occupied in the last house by Hon. Henry R. Brand. The tories have also won south Leicestershire, northwest Suffolk, Gainsboio division of Lincolnshire, northwest Staffordshire, northwest Noriolk, where Joseph Archer is defeated by Lord Henry Bentinek, and the Hyde division of Cheshire, Major E. J. Saunderson, tory, has been re-elected from Armagh over Mr. Williamson, Parnellite, by a vote of 4.572 to 1,177, an increase of 230 over vote obtained by Saunderson in the last election, although the total vote of the district fell away $18, Joseph Arch, agricultural representative, was defeated by Lord Henry Bentick, in northwest Norfolk, by only 20 votes, although in the last election he defeated Bentick by a majority of 940. There defeated Bentick by a majority of 940. There is general regret that he was defeated. The tories have won Ripon, Yorkshire, from the unionists. Captain Ker, tory, has been re-elected from East Down over Mr. McGrath, Parnellite, by a vote of 5,083 to 2,563. Captain Ker, was returned without corrections. rain ker was returned without opposition at the last election. Leonard Courtney, unionate, has been re-elected for southeast Cornwall over Abraham, by 3,763 to 2,101 in a poll of 1,490 less than that cast at the last election. Ferdinand James de Rothehild has been re-elected for Salisbury, Bockhapham hire as an unionist by a maintre of ingham: hire, as an unionist by a majority of 3,000, a slight increase over his majority at the last election. Mr. Childers, home secretary, has ordered that an inquiry be made in regard to the charges of police brutality in the disturbance at Cardiff on Thursday.

Returns received up to midnight tonight

Returns received up to midnight tonight show that the conservatives have elected 289 candidates, the unionists 63, the Gladstonians 149, and the Parnellites 72. The conservatives gain has been reduced by two. Lord Harling-ton has been re-elected for the Rossendale di-vision of northeast Lancashire, receiving 5,399 votes against 3,949 cast for Mr. Newbig-ging.

Mr. Morley, chief secretary for Ireland, speaking at meeting at Northampton today said that within a year Mr. Gladstone's Irish proposals would carry parliament and the country. Did anybody, he asked, think the policy that Scotland and Wales and a great part of England annowached would be heard of no of England approached would be heard of no more? None of the plans of paper unionists, he said, touch enormous problem of restoring social order in Ireland. Sir William Vernon Harcourt, chanceller of the exchequer, addressing a meeting at Poole tonight said that whether or not the liberals were utterly defeated in the elections, home rule would not be besten. It was impossible to delsy much longer the granting of self government to Ireland.

Saved."

CHAUTAUQUA, N. Y., July 10.—[Special.]—Rev. Sam P. Jones lectured here yesterday, in the amphitheater, to an audience of 6,000 persons. His subject was "How to be Saved."

Before commencing his lecture Mr. Jones said: I have my way of doing things and my way of saying things. Some people like what I say, but not the way I say it. God bless you, that's the only thing in this world I've got a patent right on. I am not a candidate for public favor in any sense. I have been warned that I would injure my popularity if I didn't modify my speech; but if that's the case I keep it. I'm too popular now. They are working me to death and keeping me away from my home and family.

"I wan't to say I'm no cowboy. God never made a purer woman than my mother nor a nobler man than my father. Many people question my color, and write to ask if I am black or white. I always answer, Colored—yellow buff is my color. I've no apology to make for what I say, for I'm not seeking popularity. I am not a joke or fraud. I love God and God's works."

Coming to his text, Mr. Jones said: "There is but one road of humanity in the moral universe. Hell is at one end of the road and heaven is at the other. Now it is not what sort of a fellow you are, but which way you are headed. If your back is turned on sin you are going the road to heaven, and if it is turned against holiness you are going to hell. "Some of you people are Christians. Perhaps nine-tenths of you belong to the church, but I've found that don't mean much. The meanest man I ever knew was a church member, "Peter converted 3,000 persons in an hour."

member.

"Peter converted 3,000 persons in an hour, yet there are old croaking church members and dried up old ministers that don't believe it. I believe I've seen 500 conversions in a single night, and I believe I will live to see 50,000 people converted under my own humble ministry in twelve months' time. If Peter saved 3,000 souls in an hour, why, in this enlightened nineteenth century, cannot a nation be born in a day? It is time we threw away our little iron houks and throw our seines into the river of the world and catch fish for good.

into the river of the world and catch fish for good.

"Today there are ten children born to parents in America where one soul is born to Christ. We want to save souls and preach Christ and not sectarianism. I'm a Methodist, but I'm no more to blame for being a Methodist than for being a Jones.
"Some of these Methodist preachers are talking about baptism, while all the grown people are going to hell. The Baptists cry fer water, and the half of them are going where they can't get a drop. In this nineteenth century, it is time to stop this kind of foolishnest and preach the doctrines of Christianity. Is is time to tell the world through the churches, that Christ died for sinners. God help us to see 'the right way and we all can be saved."

THE AUGUSTA STRIKE.

The Ausgusta Mills Shut Down-650 Opera

Augusta, Ga., July 10.—As telegraphed yesterday, the Augusta factory closed today, because of a refusal to advance wages 15 per cent. The picker hands went out first and caused the mill to shut down, but all the other hands demanded a similar advance. There is no prospect of the mill starting up Monday. The strikers are firm in their demand and the mill efficers are equally firm in refusing.

Removal of the Big Binfi-The Street Care-Pought Through Three Wars-Presentation of a Silver Service-Change of Business-Reavy Rains in Hooston-Personals, Etc.

Macon, Ga., July 10 .- [Special.]-All that neans the removal of a big, bold bluff that as stood there through all the long centuries of the past. It is twenty feet straight up and down the face of it, and this wall of earth and granite bowlders is one hundred and thirty est wide, and four hundred feet long. It must be removed, and big preparations are being made toward that end. Two tram cars will arrive in a few days, and they will haul the dirt from the excavation to the depreson at the trestle up the river, at the foot of Spring street. This unsightly sink will be filled as far as the little branch where the big cewer empties, with the dirt and bowlders.

Dynamite instead of blasting powder will be used in breaking up the bluff. A large force of hands will be employed, and this solid wall of thirty-five thensand square yards of earth will melt away like snow be-fere a July sun, only not quite so rapidly The bluff that is now being removed was once covered with a beautiful elm grave, and the river bank was lined with wharves for the handling of freight for the river boats. The handling of freight for the river boats. The property was held by the city as a reserve, and when the East Tennessee authorities made application for right-of-way, they allowed them to dig away the bluff, and run their line along on the brink of the stream. Through Three Wars.

MACON, July 10.—[Special.]—Charles Hap-poldt is Judge Suber's East Macon constable now, but he has been an officer of quite a different sort in his life. He was born in Germany about thirty-five years ago, and was soldier of Garibaldi's when a mere youth Being such a wild youth that his father could not manage him, he was allowed to do pretty much as he pleased. After he had allowed the glorious star of the great Italian leader till it blazed in the zenith, he turned his face westward, and followed the unfortunate Maximilian to Mexico. Here he followed the fortunes of that prince until death and disaster overtook the western emperor. Being driven out of Mexico, he enlisted in the United States army and fought through the late civil war on the federaleide. After victory put an end to that conflict, Happoldt decided to lead a quieter life, and coming to Griswgldville, he went to work at a sawmill there, and from thence he work at a sawmill there, and from thence he drifted to Mason, where he is now the terror of those whe fall under the ban of the law. His has been a remarkable career.

Presentation of a Silver Service.

Macon, Ga., July 10.—[Special.]—The exercises at four o'clock Sunday afternoon, at Centenary church, will be more of than usual interest to every member of the congregation and Subbath school.

Three weeks ago the school decided to raise funds for the purchase of a communion service to be presented to the church. With willing hearts and ready hands and considerable ling hearts and ready hands and considerable enthusiasm, they have accomplished their work, and will at this time present a beautiful silver service for the inspection of each member, and for proper presentation to the pastor in behalf of the church. It affords us great the serve to hear of the rapid growth and depleasure to hear of the rapid growth and de-velopment of this school and church. LEVERT'S GOOD LUCK.

Professor Woodall Chosen as Principal of LeVert College.

Talbotton, Ga., July 10.—[Special.]—LeVert Female college, of this place, has a history familiar with the people of Georgia. From its walls have gone forth hundreds of the most cultured women of the state. The name i self is synonimous with its achievements. But for a number of years it has been conducted on the coeducational system—the admission of both males and females. This plan has worked well, and the institution has accomplished much good. But a new era has plan has worked well, and the institution has accomplished much good. But a new era has dawned upon it. There has been placed at its head the finest educator in all the land. We refer to Professor W. H. Woodall, of Barnesville, Ga, and he is no stranger to our people. For eleven years he taught one of the most properous high schools ever had in in the county. He is by high and rearing a in the county. He is by birth and rearing a Talbot county man, and now returns to his first love after an engagement of eight years at Gordon institute, Barnesville.

Our people are enthused at his coming, and we expect old LeVert to boom as she hasn't in many years. His right bower and support is Professor R. A. Ryder, of Bibb county, who has been connected with the college for twelve months.

With Professors Woodall and Ryder's ability, energy and determination, LeVert will return to her pristine greatness and grandeur. THE NEWS FROM SAVANNAH.

The coast line railroad will run steam cars to Thunderbolt, thence by barge, to Warsaw. Supervising engineer, E. J. Thomas, has just closed contract with Baldwin & Co., fe motive to be furnished by the first of October. Hereafter passengers for Thunderbolt by rail, meet a steamer there for Warsaw, which by this communication are brought three hours closer to Savannah.

The British consulate at Savannah has been abolished. Affairs have been under the supervision of F. J. Abridland consul at Charleston. Mass meeting of the democratic party takes place Monday night. Delegates will probably be sent instructed for Bacon.

Killed by Lightning.

PRESTON, Ga., July 10.-[Special.]-Light-ing struck and killed Mr. J. N. Walker, a bright and promising young man of this coun-ty, late yesterday evening. He was in the field superintending the work of the farm; had some fourteen hands, who were all close to him at the time, and had just given orders to them to go to an outhouse for protection from the rain that was then coming up. Just as he did so a flash oi lightning came, and he was killed instantly. The deceased is a son of the Hon. J. P. Walker, of this county.

Two Children Drowned

POWDER SPRINGS, July 10.—Special.]—Millie Cooper, a negro woman, left home yesterday and came over PowderSpring creek into town to do some washing leaving her children at home. Three of them attempted to follow her, and in coming across the foot log all of them fell off and two of them were drowned. Their bodies were recovered last night, not far from the place of the accident.

A movement is being made to build a new church on Hayne street. There are already about one hundred and thirty members belonging to the Asbury mission, and they pro-pose, with the help of the Methodists of the city, to build a house of worship. They have purchased a lot, and will begin work on the new building soon Under the pastorate of Rev. J. M. Tamlin, the mission has grown very rapidly. A mass meeting of the members and parties interested in the work was held Friday, evening at the mission rooms, at which time enthusiasm in the new church enterprise reached a high pitch. Perties who had already subscribed, doubled their subscriptions. Rev. J. W. Lee was present, and made an address, in which he spoke feelingly of the work, and expressed hopes of the most sanguine character of an early success of the work in hand.

Thunder and Lightning. COVINGTON, Ga., July 10.—[Special.]—The most terrific thunder storm ever known in this section occurred here last night between 8 and section occurred here isst night between 8 and 9 o'clock. Several outhouses were struck by lightning in this place, though no serious damage was done. Dr. J. J. DEATHS IN GEORGIA.

AMERICUS, GA., July 10. - [Special.] Dr. T. E. Smith died here after being stricken only a few hours with paralysis. A truly good men has fallen, one whose death is a misfortune to the poor. He was never known to refuse to visit any one sick on account of poverty or humble station. His whole life has been spent in doing good in many cases "without money and without price." Two years ago a poor diteased woman, who for a long time had lived upon charity, died. Dr. Smith had always attended her in sickness, often giving medicine and contributing of his scanty means to buy nourishment. She lived in a shanty which was her own. Her will gave this and several hundred dollars, which she had hoarded, to Dr. Smith. Dr. T. E. Smith died here after being stricken

IMPORTANT ELECTION CASES.

Opinion Of the Attorney General on the Sumter County Order.

On the 15th of June last the treasurer of Muscogee county died. The ordinary, Hon. F. M. Brooks, ordered an election to be held on the 13th of July to fill the vacaucy. Subsequently, his attention was called to an act approved October 17th, 1885, which provided for a registration of the voters of Muscogee county. The commissioners of roads and revenue had failed to appoint registrars. The ordinary, in doubt as te what should be done, referred the matter to Governor McDaniel, who requested Attorney General Anderson's opinion. He expressed himself as follows:

Section 262 or the code provides, in substance, that when a vacancy occurs in such an office as that referred to, and an election cannot be held more than six months before such term express, there shall be no election to fill the vacancy, but the appointee of the ordinary shall serve out the unexpired term. This disposes of the matter inquired about, without deciding whether the local registration law applies to such an election. My opinion is, therefore, that the order for an election to fill the vacancy should be recyted, and that the appointee should serve out the unexpired term.

In accordance with this opinion the ordi-F. M. Brooks, ordered an election to be held

In accordance with this opinion the ordinary revoked the order for the election.

In Newton county the recent death of Sheriff Anderson brought up a similar question; and in Sumter county there was a question of like inner recording the election of tion of like import regarding the election of a tax collector. The tax collector died on the 22d of April and the ordinary appointed Mr. R. R. Stewart to fill the vacancy temporarily.

He then ordered an election.

Upon this Sumter county case Attorney General Anderson gave Governor McDaniel the following opinion yesterday afternoon:

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OPINION.

General Anderson gave Governor McDaniel the following opinion yesterday afternoon:

THE ATTORNEY GENERAL'S OFFICE. State of Georgia, Atlanta, July 10, 1886. His Excellency, Henry D. McDaniel—Sir: In response to yours of the 6th instant requesting my opinion us to whether an election should be held in Sunter county to fill vacancy in the office of tax collector of that county, or whether the appointee of the ordinary should serve out the unexpired term, I beg to submit the following opinion: It seems that the vacancy occurred on the the 22d of April last. An election to fill it could have been had within twenty days thereafter, (code, section 257.) but the ordinary, for the convenience of the people, ordered the election to take place on the 27th day of July, 1886. Section 262 of the code provides that if a vacancy in such an office occurs, "and it is not more than s.x months from the time the election can be appointed by said ordinary, and held, until the existing term will expire, the person... appointed shall discharge the duties of the office for the balance of the term, and there shall be no special election." But in the case under c nisideration the election could have been appointed more than six months would remain of the term, in the earliest time at which an election could be legally held, none should be had, but the appointee must serve until the term expires. It follows that if the vacancy occurs long enough before the expiration of the term for an election to be legally appointed and held in time to give the person. The effect, we were, an election must be ordered. The ordinary cannot, by delaying to order the election, secure the right to fill the vacancy for the whole of the unexpired term, by appointment. In the present case the ordinary did not seek to do this, but postponed ordering the election for the convenience of the person elected more than six months to serve, an election must be ordinaries, by delaying to order elections, to secure for themselves the right of appointment in casees where Athens, Ga., June 16, 1885.—The S. S. Company-Dear Sirs: My little daughter, at the age of five years, was afflicted with a very painfu and disfiguring eruption on her face that baffled the skill of the physicians. I gave her Swift's Specific, and less than one bottle cured th: disease entirely. Yours, etc., J. L. BURCH.

From a Grateful Heart.

Early in October, 1884, I was taken with inflammatory rheumatism, so that I was confined to my bed, and could not even move the toes on one of my feet. I could not bear thave my clothes changed or to be handled in anywise. With all the remedies administered, I found no relief. A friend seeing the advertisement of S. S. S. as a rheumatic cure, secured the secured secured secured secured secured. some for me. This was in February, 1885, and after taking six small bottles, I noticed a change in the feeling of the limbs, and could turn over in bed almost without assistance or pain. After a dozen bottles had been used, I could walk on crutches, I am now able to walk without crutches, and do the cooking for a family of four and nearly all the housework. MRS, FANNIE E. JAMES.

Hephzebiah, Richmond County, Ga., June 21, 1886. A Postmaster's Statement.

About three years ago, there came upon me a feeling of general debility, accompanied with loss of appetite and energy. Eventually rheumatism attacked me in my shoulders and arms, which so disabled me that I could not dress myself. Finally I had to give up my school. I was then engaged in teaching. The physicians tried various prescriptions, but failed to bring me relief. In fact, some of them seemed to be at a loss to make a diagnosis of my case. The discase finally settled in my right hip and leg, and produced lumps under the skin and swelling of the limb, especially at the ankle, that I could not rest at night or walk except with a crutch Previously I had been a man of fine phsique and strong constitution. Various remedies were tried, but no permanent relief followed and they were abandoned. Seeing a certificate of a case similar to mine that had been cured by Swift's Specific, I concluded to try it. I commenced to improve on the first bottle. Have taken of the large and small, twelve bottles, and am glad to say that I have been entirely relieved, and have not any symptom of the [disease for am glad to say that I have been entirely relieved, and have not any symptom of the [disease for more than twelve months. I recommend Swift's Specific to all my friends.

Nicholson, Ga., June 15, 1886.—The Swift Specific Company—Gentlemen: About twenty-three years ago an itching sore appeared on my left leg, which eventually covered almost the entire surface from the knee to the ankle. The discharge of bloody water was continual, and I suffered the most intense pain for many years. I could not sleep scarcely at night and a greater portion of the time I could not walk except on crutches. In turn I used about all the salves, ointments, sarsaparillas and blood purifiers that I could hear of, and was treated by a number of physicians without obtaining relief. A passing commercial traveler advised me to try Swift's Specific. I finally did so. I have used only half dozen bottles, and my leg is sound again, and there is scarcely any sign of my terrible and long protracted affliction left. I can walk as well as ever, without the use of a cane even, and occasionally spend a day in plowing. My neighbors all knew of my affliction, and will join me in bearing witness to the great cure wrought by S. S. S.

A Well Known Physician.

Elberton, Ga., June 16th, 1886.

The Swift Specific Co.—Gentlemen: During the year 1876 I was attacked with articular rheumatism—the effect of exposure to dampness and night air. I exhaused all the remedies known to our profession, including iodide of potash in various combinations, wine of colchicum, fluid extinate of poke root, and various other preparations, including a patent potash preparation. I was also treated for several years by a number of our best physicians, but obtained no permanent relief. For nearly a year I was confined almost continuously to my bed, and could not attend to business of any kind Being a practicing physician, I was somewhat prejudiced against patent medicines; but coming in contact with traveling salesmen almost every day, who with one accord recommended the S. S. S. to me, I finally concluded to try it. I commenced improving while using the first bottle, and when I had finished half dezen bottles. I was so much improved that I was able to walk about and attend to my business once more. I consider your Swift Specific the best tonic and alternative made, and I do not hesitate to prescribe it in all cases requiring a reliable blood purifier. Very truly yours.

From President Pickens.

GREENVILLE, S. C., June 21st, 1886.—Swift Specific Co.: Dear Sirs—About four years ago I was attacked with what the physicians pronounced Neuralgic Rheumatism, accompanied with exysipelas. My appetite failed me entirely, and I had an intermitting pulse and very irregular pulsations of the heart. A terrible pain soon came into my chest and shoulders, and I became so helpless that I could attend to no business at all. The pains were movable and would sometimes pass from one part of my body to another. Finally, the erysipelas broke out on my left hand and arm and produced much swelling. I was for eighteen months afflicted in this way, and of course used a great many kinds of medicine but dothing gave me relief. Friends finally persuaded me to try Swift's Specific, which I did. I noticed a decided improvement while taking the first bottle. I continued its use until I had taken about one dozen bottles, when I found myself entirely recovered and no sign of the disease left except a stiffness in my hand, resulting from the crysipelas. While taking the medicine I gained on an average, two pounds of flesh per week. I think your S. S. S. a valuable medicine, and I frequently recommend it to the afflicted.

Very truly yours,

THE AMERICUS, PRESTON AND LUMPKIN RAILROAD.

The President and Directors on the Condition of the Road—Completed to Lumpkin—Progress of the Extension to the Chattahoochee River—to Prospects, Etc.

The first annual report of the president and directors of the Americus, Preston and Lumpkin railroad makes a gratifying exhibit. The follow-ing extracts will be read with interest:

THORISED.

By reference to schedule it will be seen that our debts amount to $30,449.52. Now, how shall we liquidate this indebtedness? If stock subscribers had paid in premptly as they should, and we had issued $15.606 more bonds than we did, we would icdeay be almost clear of debt. But having these debts must provide for their prompt payment. Our company has a fine credit and it is our duty to preserve it. The plan which seems most feasible is to issue extension bonds of the denomination of $500 cach, payable twenty years hence, to the amount of $5.000 per mile. Let these bonds be secured by a first mortgage on such extension as may be made and on all our rolling stock, and a second mortgage on our completed road. Such a bond, it is believed, would attract the attention of investors and be readily marketed, proceeds of which would be sufficient to liquidate floating debt, equip extension, including liberal amount of rolling s ock, construct and furnish shops with necessary iools and machinery.

"The contracts made require the completion of our road to Antioch or Hannahatchee by September lst, and from there to Chattahoochee river the distance at shortest point is only eight miles. If we shall need a few thousand dollars to complete the extension to the river by the lst of November next, will not the people interested subscribe and pay it. When we have reached the river out line can, with the co-operation of other lines touching the river, haul cotton from Americus to Savannah for a dollar per bale less than the present rate paid from it at place, and this dollar per bale will be saved to the producer on the entire line, and the saving in all other freights will be in about the same proportion. By reference to schedule it will be seen that our

Genffin, Ga., July 10.-[Special.]-The GEIFFIN, Ga., July 10.—[Special.]—Incorporation of southern passenger agents in Atlanta some time ago, the opinion was expressed that Griffin was destined to be a railroad center. This opinion is now being verified. All the arrangements that it is to be built at once. All the arrangements have been made. The money has been raised to build a railroad from Monticello via Jackson. The road will be built upon the bid bed of the Griffin, Madison and Monticello railroad. Major T. P. Branch, of Augusta, has been working for some time in the integet of this road. He has worked against great opposition, but success has at last crowned his efforts. A proposition was made to him recently by the Macon and Covington road that if a certain smount of money could be raised the road would be built. Having something definite and langable to work with, he renewed his effort, and he has rucceeded in raising every cent of the money necessary.

The Macon and Covington road will be running from Macon to Monticello by August the first, and the road from Griffin to Monticello will be in operation in time to move the cotton crop.

Since writing the above I have interviewed Captain Grantland, the president of the Georgia Midland and Gulf railroad, and he says that the new railroad from here to Monticello has nothing to do with the Georgia Midland and Gulf railroad. He further states that work on the Georgia Midland and Gulf is progressing rapidly; that cars will be running from Columbus to the mountain by September 15th. from date.

Mr. J. H. Latimer, traveling passenger agent of the McKenzie route, and Mr. C. B. Walker, traveling passenger agent of the Western and Atlantic rallroad, returned yesterday morning from a trip through south Georgia and South Carolina. These gentlemen are getting up a grand excursion to all joints in Arkansas and Texas, if will leave Atlantia some time in August. The rates will be remarkably low, and the outlook is that it will be the most successful excursion ever gotten up to the southwest.

We desire to call our readers' attention to Mr. P. H. Snook's advertisement in today's issue of The Constitution. He gives some startling figures for bed room suites. Thirteen dollars and fifty cents is enough to paralyze the man that made it, and enable every cottage in Atlanta to have one or more. We were also shown some very handsome dresser tollet suites for $2.8.50, wood tops; $35, marble top. They are marvels of beauty for the price, and certainly will create a sensation in the jurniture trade. We understand Mr. Snook bought two hundred suites for spot cash, hence these astonishingly low prices. We also understand every article of furniture has been marked down to prices in keeping with the times. We advise our friends to give the cheapest furniture house in Georgia a call, Author baies—Real Estate—Leak & Lyle—Ten beautiful West End lots, one with a testdence, the Shannon property. On Thursday next, July 15th, at 5 o'clock in the afternoon, we will sell on the premises, the choicest property now being offered in West End. Situated on Peeples and Baugh streets, just one-half block from end of car line, on Gordon street, the lots are beautifully elevated and level, and each one is a choice building site. The neighborhood cannot be surpassed in West End, and this is saying a great deal where an entire community is so free from anything objectionable as is the case in West End. The residence lot is 100 feet front by 425 feet deep to a 15-foot alley, and has a nice and new house, recently painted and in fine order, comparatively, besides two-room servant house, coal and wood house, fowl house and a large hothouse. Plats now at our office. Titles perfect. Terms very liberal—one-fifth cash, and bialnote equally in one, two, three and four years, with eight per cent interest with privilege of paying tooner, if desired. Hon. Pat Walsh's Protest.

THE CONSTITUTION has no desire to pro long the discussion of the late state camign and its issues. The democratic voters of this state have put these matters beyond the necessity of discussion. They have settled them definitely at the ballot box. The Hon. Patrick Walsh, however, in the Augusta Chronicle, insists in a vague and myserious way on continuing the discussion.

In an editorial in Saturday's Chronicle he insists that General Gordon's nomination will not be made unanimous, and should not be. General Gordon will manage to get along without a unanimous nomination, if a few delegates to the convention are determined to deny it to him. To make a nomination unanimous is simply the hearty expression of a mere acquiescence by the minority in the declared will of the majority. It comes usually from a sincere desire to wipe out party divisions, and restore party unity, and promote party harmony. If ever candidate won the right to unanimous nomination, General Gordon is that candidate. His race stands without parallel in its brilliant and decisive results. No sane man can doubt that he is the overwhelming choice of the democratic voters of this state. He is therefore entitled to all the courtesy that a democratic convention ever gives to a demo cratic candidate. Mr. Walsh insists, how ever, that he shall not have this.

It is not our business to inquire into Mr. Walsn's reasons for refusing to accord to General Gordon what is given to every candidate who comes into the convention with a defite and fairly declared majority; but there are reasons why we should like to know what his motives are. They must spring from reasons personal to General Gordon or his friends. If Mr. Walsh was sincere in what he wrote of General Gordon in the editorial columns of the Chronicle before this campaign opened-if he was sincere in what he has said about General Gordon since this campaign opened—there is nothing in General Gordon's character that would justify Mr. Walsh in protesting against his having a unanimous nomination at the hands of the convention, If Mr. Walsh's objections, which clearly cannot be possible on grounds personal to General Gorn, rest on his aversion to those who have been supporting General Gordon, we would e glad to know it. Mr. Walsh has been on he closest terms of intimacy with these men, and has repeatedly expressed his confidence in them. We should be pained to learn that he had found reason for a permanent estrangement, or for a change of his opinion concerning them. If Mr. Walsh's objection, however, to making General Gordon's nomination unanimous is not based on reasons personal to General Gordon or to his friends, the next reason that suggests itself would be his objection to the methods of this campaign. We have shown repeatedly that there can be no valid or intelligent or reasonable objection to the manner in which General Gordon and his friends have conducted this campaign. From first to last they have appealed to the people. They have asked for a popular vote. They have urged the calling of primaries. All their energies have been directed towards getting out a full vote. The result is that the vote is many times over the largest democratic vote ever cast in Georgia in a nomination. Mr. Walsh says that "not one-half of the democrats voted." Our reply is, that more democrats votedtwice or three times over-in this nomination than have voted in any nomination before, and we have the figures to sustain this nesertion. The vote has not only been the est ever east in a democratic primary, but General Gordon's majority is the me ever whelming ever received by any candidate in a contested race. It is hard to say, therefore, where Mr. Walsh can find any ground in the methods of the campaign on which to base his protest against General Gordon's nomination being made unani-

It must be borne in mind that we are no appealing to General Gordon's enemies to forego any further protest that may suggest elf to them. His indorsement by the democratic voters of Georgia has been so overwhelming that he can get along without y formal compliment from the convention therefore, Mr. Walsh finds in the points t are discussed above, or in any others may suggest themselves to him, suffireason for standing up in the conven-ad solemnly recording his vote against the proposition to unite the democratic party by a unanimous nomination of General Gor don, he is at perfect liberty to gratify this impulse, and we shall not say him nay; but we shall contend to the last that Mr. Walsh has no valid reasons for refusing to General Gordon a courtesy that is usual with the party, and that was never won more fairly than by the race he has just made.

An Italian Sam Jones. Just now all Italy is in a fever of excite ment over a new evangelist. The name of this remarkable man is Agostino Di Montefeltro. He is spoken of as a second Savonarola, and his converts number thousands.

Recently Di Montefeltro conducted meetings at Pisa. During his stay all ordinary business was suspended. The stores closed up and the professional men left their offices. At the universities all lectures were postponed in order to allow the students to hear the great preacher.

The congregations were immense, and in-cluded all classes of society. It was no uncommon thing to see all the listeners in tears, but at times their enthusiasm led them to forget the sanctity of the church, and break out into demonstrations of applause When he left Pisa 30,000 persons accompa nied him to the depot to bid him farewell.

It is safe to conclude that the Italian evangelist is a foreign edition of Sam Jones. Upon no other hypothesis can his phenomenal popularity be explained. When Di Montefeltro tells his hearers that "it is the hit dog that always yelps," he labors under the dis advantage of having to say it in the world's mest musical language, and it cannot have the force that it has when it is plumped out in our Sam's gritty Anglo-Saxon monosyllables. Still, he manages to get there. Even in his liquid opera bouffe tongue he doubtless finds melodious equivalents for the rasping words in which Mr. Jones heaps obloquy and scorn upon the miserable fellows who "Ain't fitten ter git fitten." Despite the difficulties in the way, we are satisfied that this breezy apostle has transplanted the unique and vigorous methods of our Georgia preacher to his own classic land. It is a pleasure to think so. Every country needs an earnest and honest reformer, a man who is not afraid to utter unwelcome truths. Such men should not be set down as "offensive partisans." They bave a mission.

An Example to be Followed. Joaquin Miller's career is not to be com mended to our young men as a model in all respects, but there is something admirable in the man. In a short autobiographical sketch in Lippincott, Miller says:

"And now, soon-this year, God willing-I shall stop writing, and, in a small way, take up the law again. For a man who writes constantly cannot think much, and a man who does not think much ought not to have much to say. There is a dispos tion to selfishness and egotism in writing that is ruinous to all men. A man who makes a pro of writing poetry ought to die early; for if he lives long he will surely suffer deeply. Besides all that, the field of legitimate poetry is so small that no man ought to try to make his bread, much less maintain others on it. And then, with the Bible, Shakspeare, and the Brownings, the world is not greatly in need of more poetry; but it is greatly in need of more fruit, more flowers, and more beautiful gardens."

It takes sincerity, strength and a noble purpose for a man to deliberately write and publish such thoughts. Why cannot other men be equally frank, honest and just? What the poet says of writing applies with equal force to talking. The man who talks constantly cannot think much. Yet there are preachers, lecturers, politicians and a host of public speakers whose wishy-washy, ever-lasting flood of words, stops for nothing short of death. If some of these men would ask for a vacation, in order to do a little thinking, leave would be cheerfully granted.

But writers and talkers are not the only people who go along in a perfunctory way. Men work without thinking. This thoughtless, unreasoning rush is the vice of the age. It is impossible to critically examine our fashions, laws, literature and works of material progress without coming to the conclusion that the men who are responsible for them all were in too great a hurry. They did not take time to think. Now, it does not follow that our workers should quit work. The point is to couple thought with action. It is not good for the one to be without the other.

Found in a Magazine.

Southern readers of the July Century will turn first to Mr. Harry S. Edwards's idyllic sketch entitled, 'Two Runaways.' The sketch is not materially helped by the illustrations, for each reader will prefer to place the characters for h meelf. The flavor of the story is delicious. One tastes again the stolen watermelon, and gets a whiff of the aroma of wild muscadines and roasting ears. The humor, too, is not only characteristic and true, but shows a serious and deliberate study of some of the picturesque aspects of slavery times. If we have never heard of such a happening before, we know that it ought to have happened and that it must have happened. If it happened only in the author's mind, that fact shows that he has a little world of his own, of which we less fortunate mortals will be glad to have more substantial glimpses now and then. We do not hesitate to place Mr. Edwards in the front rank of those who are preparing in one way a d another to illustrate the south in letters. He has whetted his pen on the grindstone of journalism, and we are led to expect great things of him. He has a delicate but firm touch and a vigorous style, and a gift of humorous delineation full of dramatic suggestions. Another article in the Century which will attract the attention of southern readers is one on "Cross-Country Riding," contributed by Theodore Roosevelt and Henry Cabot Lodge. "Cross-country riding," it should be observed, is the eastern name for fox nunting, and a tremendous affair it must be. In the south a drag hunt is left to the enjoyment of small boys and negroes. When there are puppies to be trained or older dogs to be exercised, then the drag hunt is in order. But in the neighborhood of Long Island and Boston a drag hunt is dignified with the name of "cross-country riding," and Messrs. Roosevelt and Lodge claim that it is quite a

There is no disputing tastes, but we do not hesitate to say that there is not money enough in Wall street to induce a Georgian tox hunter to mount a steed and follow a bag of anise seed seventeen or eighteen miles. No! The delights of fox hunting are not in following a bag of anise seed, or a cat skin, ner in cross-country riding; but in following a kennel of thoroughbred hounds in full cry after a game fox that has tested many a kennel in the field.

The article in the Century is illustrated with pictures showing kennels of white spotted dogs capering about in a drove of bob tailed horses bestridden by men in high hats and top boots. In a Georgian fox hunt this paraphernalia, together with the bob tailed erses, would last about seven minutes and a half. The white spotted dogs might last half an hour, but at the end of that time the whole caboodle would be lest in the swamps, while the Georgian hunters and dogs would be in full cry after Reynard.

If Messrs. Roosevelt and Lodge are really fond of fox hunting we extend them a cordial invitation to test the Georgian style. We have sportsmen here who know how to bird flies, and there are those here who would be glad to initiate those eastern inexperts.

A Confederate Soldiers' Home.

A circular signed by Governor Fitzhugh Lee, president of the board of visitors, informs us that the Lee Camp Soldiers' Home. in the suburbs of Richmond, has become an established fact.

There are now 100 inmates of the Home gallant confederate veterans from nine southern states. The institution is beautifully located on a tract of thirty-six acres, within a mile of the corporate limits of the city. There are seven buildings, two large houses and five beautiful cottages donated by gen erous persons in the north and in Rich-

A movement is now on feet to erect a chapel for the use of the veterans, at a cost of about $3,500. As the people of Richmond have already contributed many thousands of dollars to the Home, they now appeal to the friends of the confederate soldiers throughout the south to help in building this place of worship.

We have no doubt that the appeal will meet with a hearty response. It is gratifying to see the success which has attended the establishment of this much needed refuge, and no efforts should be spared to keep it up.

THE New York Journalist says: "I print on my first page." This is very good as a burlesque. It is well known that no genuine journalist ever had a first page. 'A genuine journalist is the man who is daily squelched by the practical proprietors in the interest of the job office. Long live the practical proprietors, for in that direction the salary lies.

JOHN L. SULLIVAN played baseball in New York a few days ago for the benefit of the Parnell fund. Sullivan wore a white flannel shirt, a red and ble necktie, checked trouser and a silk cap. His nine-there were eleven in it--went to the bat, and he was the first to swing the ash. Whiz! came a ball. Whew! came another, and at that Sullivan struck. The ball started off en route for another part of the solar system. But it changed its course, came down somewhere in the field, with Sul livan well on his way around the bases. Then he came home and there arose a hubbub. When Sullivan went in to pitc. there was much interest felt. He pitched straight to the bat. The score was oly 31 to . 0, and Sullivan's side got beat.

Owing to the omission of a line, and to seteral other typographical errors, the following conclusion of an address delivered by L. H. Bleckley to the literary societies of Merger University, a Macon, Ga., June 29, 1886, is Leprinted:

They told, they told, in mournful numbers, That I must never eat cucumbers; They also told the reason why; But, eat them! Yes, I would, or die. And you, if you would only try it, Would die, I think, or have the diet. In spite of all advice and warning,

I ate them early in the morning, And then, although a mere beginner, For breakfast, luncheon and for dinner And in the evening with my tea, I would embrace some two or three. My feelings grew to such excess I tried to feel and fancy less.

I went from home, but still I met them, And higher, higher did I rate them; I always wanted to forget them. And always ate, and ate, and ate them. I thought, before, I was devoted But now indeed I loved-I doted.

I traveled on; my love was growing, And I kept going, going, lgoing. I searched the country and the town, The river valleys, up and down, The brooks and branches, and the drains The hills and mountains and the plains, Therailway stations and the trains-No matter where I chanced to meet them My only business was to eat them.

And eat I did, and often, often, My plate was set upon my coffin. At length. I shook, but not with chill That spares awhile and waits to kill; The reason I became a shaker. I saw, I saw the undertaker! Had every torture, every pain Of cucumber on the brain.

And what ensued, is now the question? You say, of course, 'twas indigestion, Within the halls and walls of Macon. The sole result of this devotion Was truth of thought and of emotion It broke the spell, the dread and terror Of a table, vegetable, error, It swept away the trash and lumber That overlay the great cucumber.

If you would have a truthful notion A truthful impulse or emotion A truthful vision in your slumbers, Eat, I pray you, eat cucumbers.

But eat by rule or you may rue it; I pause to tell you how to do it From thrifty vines select and gather-Do this yourself, not by another, And purchase not from any vender-The fruit when young and crisp and tender. This, cool and fresh, proceed to peel But not till seated at your meal; Then slice, and season to your taste, And eat at once, and eat in ha And eat enough; with such a victual The danger lies in eating little. Like learning drunk from Mercer spring.

JULY CROP REPOPT.

The Condition and Prospects of Field Pro-ducts in Georgia.

duets is Georgia.

The crop report for July, issued by the department of agriculture, will be ready in a few days. From the advance sheets, the fellowing interesting information has been cuiled: Wheat.

The yield in north Georgia is about one-half the crop of an average year and that of middle Georgia but little over one third. In southwest and in east Georgia, where a small acreage is given to the crop, the yield is much better, amounting to about three-fourths of a crop.

The per cent. of yield for the state is exclusive of southeast Georgia, where but little wheat is sown, 52.

The per cent of yield for the state is exclusive of southeast Georgia, where but little wheat is sown, 52.

The estimated yield per acre, in bushels in north Georgia is 45; in middle Georgia 5. The grain has been injured in the shock by protracted rains in many locations.

The severe freezes in January, a large part of the crop in middle Georgia 30; and in the whole state 83.

The condition and prespect is in north Georgia 64; in middle Georgia 79; in southwest Georgia 80; and in the whole state 83. The condition fails below that of last wouth in all the sections except that of southeast Georgia. The crop hasfallen off 4 points in the state, on account of protracted et weather and the consequent grassy condition of the crop. The lands and crops in nearly all the counties have suffered from excessively heavy rains, washing the uplands and overflowing the bottoms.

The condition and prospect is, in north Georgia, 77; in middle Georgia, 91; in southwest, and in east Georgia, 93; and in southeast Georgia, 95. The average for the whole state, is 92. This is 3 poluts below the reported condition of the crop June 1st. On bottom lands much damage has resulted to the crop from overflows. On the uplands that have been reasonably well worked, the crop is generally very tood.

TEMPERATURE AND RAINFALL.

The mean temperature of the spring, and thus far of the summer months, has been much lower than what is usual for the time of year, and the amount of rain for the same very much greater. The average amount of rainfall for the month of June in the state is 932 inches, being 5.32 inches in excess of the average for June, as determined from past observations.

There was an average of fourteen rainy days in north and middle Georgia, and at some places as many as twenty. In southern Georgia the precipitations were somewhat heavier, but the rainy weather was not allogother so continuous. At Americus there was the large total rainfall during the month of 16 inches.

A destructive wind-storm, with heavy rain, occurred on the 30th in east and southwest Georgia, doing greal damage to crops. The storm passed over Washington, Twiggs, Brooks, Thomas and Dougherty counties, covering in its track the width of several counties in the extreme southwestern part of the state.

LONDON, July 10.—[Special by cable.]—The intolerance shown by the British religious public to anything in the way of innovation in the mat-ter of church service was strikingly illustrated to-day at the City temple, where Mr. Beecher preached his second sermon. Mr. Beecher cannot preach in a "pepper box," as the pulpit is irrev-erently termed here. It cramps him so Dr. Parker had for today a platform specially built, some-what after the manner of the one in Plymouth church. This was syed askance by some of the straight laced British Christians as they passed straight taced British Christians as they passed into the big church, packing it almost to suffocation, and as Mr. Beecher was about beginning his sermon, there were vigorous cries of "pulpit." It was curious to note the fire that came into Beecher's eye and the determined set of his mouth. There was fight there. It recalled the time what he faced an angry mob in Liverpool twenty-dree years ago, and beat them down. This was what he said, in tones that had the old-time charge what he said, in tones that had the old-time charge. "As to the pulpit, I think about "dat as Daniel Webster thought. He regarded "accontinuance of religion in this world in spite of pulpits to be one of the signs of its divinity. I suppose pulpits originally were framed after the apocalyptic vision of a candiestick and "interest have been too much inally were framed after the apocatyptic vision of a candlestick and matters have been too much like wax candles in the candresticks, hard and stiff, giving cut very little light. No man would ever undertake to go before a Crowo for their votes and be perched upon the tipend of a candlestick. When a man is in earnest in preaching he might preach from the top of his head to his toe; it is not the votee alone, but the min that preaches."

The pulpit shouters subsided abashed and Mr. Beecher went on with a powerful sermon that well with the misconception of religion that made a thing of gloom. Tomorrow evening Beccher is to be entertained at a dinner at the Metropole hotel. Despite the fact that the season is over and the most prominent people are out of town, while those who remain are wrapped up in politics, there will be a notable gathering of detinguished men to welcome their Brooklyn divine about evenly divided between prominent Americans who are stopping here and Englishmen of world wide reputation. Minister Phelps is to be present, as is Consut Generat Waller, while the American consuls, Russell of Liverpool, Savage of Belfast, and the consuls from Dundee, Birmingham and other points are coming from their stations for the occasion.

The prince of Wales has written expressing regrets that the occurrence of the great state dinner and ball at Buckingham palace on the same evening will prevent his attendance, but aunouncing that his private secretary, Mr. William A. Bascom, will attend as his representative. A number of other men of title and renown also soand warm and kindly greetings to Mr. Beecher, and regret that prior engagements for this ball will prevent their meeting him.

Citizenship and Suffrage.

Citizenship and Suffrage

EDITORS CONSTITUTION: My old friend Dr. Orr, school commissioner for Georgia, s have fallen into the error—by no means men—that the xivth and xvth articles to the fed-eral constitution fastens upon us "for all time" the doctrine of universal suffrage. [See his print-ed address in Florida, delivered March, 1885.] The xivth amendment defines citizenship, but it does not pre-eribe the qualifications of voters. That is ed address in Florida, delivered March, 1886.] The xivth amendment defines citizenship, but it does not prescribe the qualifications of voters. That is a promise reserved to the states. And the xvth amendment merely guards against impartial (not universal) suffrage. Now a man may be a citizen of the United States or of the state, and yet not be entitled to vote. Women and children are citizens, and yet they do not vote. Suffrage is one of the chiefest functions of citizenship, and its constitutional possession is the highest evidence of citizenship, and yet a man may be a citizen without it, and in point of fact many are ro in the state of Rhode Island. The proposition laid down by Mr. Justice Curffs (in 19 How. Pa. 881) trial "the enjoyment of the election franchies is not easential to citizenship," has never been set aside. Georgia may restrict the suffrage tomorrow if she likes to an educational and property qualification, but in doing so the must submit to a corresponding reduction of her representation in the lower house of conserva-

Among THE CONSTITUTION printers is a bright young fellow who used to run a country paper in one of the mountain counties of Georgia. Afte "throwing in his case" yesterday, he came in my room, and, sitting down, began to skim over the exchanges.

I had gone perhaps fifty yards when I chanced to look behind me. Bob was lying face downward in the branch, his head bobbing from side to side in a queer fashion. I remarked half aloud: 'Look at that blamed fool.' I supposed he was trying to make me laugh. In a mo ment his head became still and his body lay appa rently lifeless, in the branch. I ran to him, pulled him out, looked into his face and above his eye was a small hole as if made by a bullet. I had and I knew enough about law to understand that I would be suspected of murder. I looked about me. Nothing was to be seen but the rugged mountain sides. It was the loneliest spot I ever saw. No human habitation was in sight; 10 road, no liv-ing creature, but there I stood with the body of my riend. I thought of the jail and the new iron cage about which I had written jesting paragraphs Have I, I thought, made fun of that thing so many times only to be its first occupant? I could see the trial. I could feel the hangman's halter. Wha must I do? Must I fly? No: I decided to brave it out. I ran as fast as I could to the nearest house and told the people that somebody had killed Bob Burns. In company with two men I returned to the snot where the dead body lay. When we got there Bob was standing in the path wiping the water out of his ears. I his neck and wept tears of He was subject to fits, and I did not know it."

There is in Atlanta a certain printer named Bill, who is remarkable, first, because he weighs near on to three hundred pounds, and, second, because nobody ever yet got the better of the aforesaid Bill. Once upon a time Bill was in Columbia. S. C., and celebrated the event by "hrowing in a case" in one of the newspaper offices. Now, it happens that Bill regards with a special dislike two namely, grim death and a "table." When the oreman called time, Bill marched up to the hook to get his "take" and fell heir to a "table." Bill couldn't set it, and after vainly trying to swap it off he walked solemnly up to the foreman and said: "I am expecting my valise and would like to go down to the train and get it."

Consent was given, and as Billingsed the proof press he laid in a supply of proof paper, went to the depot and took the Lest train to Augusta.
When the conductor came around Bill took out his proof paper and T. rose, "I am deaf and dumb,"
The conducto, sized Bill up as a fraud and set the passenger to watch him. Jokes were told, won-derful stories were related, Bill was guyed at but Pothing moved the great dummy, who sat perfectly still and stared out of the window. At last Augusta was reached, and Bill was happy. Next morning Bill was in the Globe hotel. In walked his friend, the conductor, who pointed to the bar and made a motion as if taking a drink. He was paralyzed when the supposed dummy spoke up quickly;

Well, yes; I guess I wouldn't mind taking a little of your liquor, as long as you were so clever when I was coming over yesterday."

CORDON FILLS HIS HOUSTON EN GAGEMENTS YESTERDAY.

Speaking to Large Crowds in Fort Valley and Hous-ton—The Enthusiastic Reception with Which He Met—No Doubt About Old Houston News of Interest Elsewhere, Etc.

PERRY, Ga., July 10.—[Special.]—Last evening at 8:15 General Gordon arrived at Fort Valley. At the train he was met by a large crowd of friends and admirers, and he was driven out to the county seat of Mr. Wesley Houser, escorted by a company of horsemen under the leadership of Captain A. H. Long. At Colonel Houser's the party was received with a hearty welcome. About ten o'clock a large cr wd of young ladies and gentlemen made up a band of serenaders and under the light of a cloudless moon the sweet strains of music, mingled with happy voices, rang out npon the odorous air of the night and the summer night was turned into a glerious holiday. After the serenade and calls were made for "Gordon!" "Gordon!" and in response the general came out and delivered a beautiful and feeling address. It was an occasion of peculiar enjoyment, in fact, one of the pleasantest episodes of the whole

This morning a fine turnout came to Mr. Houser's residence to escort him to Gray's grove in Fort Valley. The carriage was beautifully decorated with flowers, the wheels being wreathed with evergroens and choice blossoms by the fair hands of lovely daughters

Arrived at the greve, under the inviting shades of which a great crowd had assembled, the general was greeted with the wildest cheers.

Gordon badges, ribbons and beautiful floral designs were everywhere conspicuous. Fort Valley has not seen such a crowd for many a long day, nor have the people of Houston turned out in such enthusiastic masses for a ong, long time.

After the speech, which was about one hour

After the speech, which was about one hour in length, the general held an impromptu reception in the parlor of the Harris house, where an eager throng pressed around to shake the honest hand of the glorious Gorden "ALL ABOARD FOR PERRY!" shouted the conductor, and people made a nush for the train. As the general left the hotel the ladies on the front verandas waved him an enthusisstic farewell.

stools and scatarms, as the train sped away toward Perry.

As the train rolled into Perry cheer after cheer went up, and there stood a handsome carriage, drawn by four white horses, the whole turnout handsomely decorated with flowers and evergreens. The harness of the handsome animals looked as if they were made up of treasures of flower gardens. The procession formed, and General Gordon, by Judge A. S. Giles and Judge W. D. Notting ham, and L. S. Townsley for driver, seat of themselves in the carriage, and away they themselves in the carriage, and away they went.

The courthouse was crowded with people. Sming ladies occupied the front series, and five or six hundred citizens jar med themselves into the building, and remained there patiently, despite the operations.

The percentagons

on the stand were of surprising beauty. On the wall stall was written in large golden letters, "The People's Choice." Above that was raised a great arch of evergreens, magnolia leaves and ornamental grasses. In front were vases of rare and beautiful flowers, and a pyramid of evergreens and flowers stood on the flor and around the stand, the drooping leaves of evergreens, palms and grasses, form-ing a beautiful drapery around the plaform.

ing a beautiful drapery around the plaform.

THE INTRODUCTION

was delivered in an impressive manner by Judge W. D. Nottingham, of the county court, who occupied the stand for a few minutes, and then General Gordon arose and spoke for about an hoar, during which time the old building rang from time to time with the cheers of the audience. At the close a handsome box of beautiful flowers were presented to the speaker by Miss Nannie Holtzelaw and Miss Brunson. A card was attached by a bit of white ribbor.

Miss Nahnie Holtzciaw and Miss Brunson. A card was attached by a bit of white ribbor , on which were written:

"To General John B. Gordon, the peop de's choice, with the compliments of those who k now him best and love him most. Home Folk g."

On the back of the card was written: "By Mrs. C. M. Neel."

After the speech "was over the Gord on men were requested by Judge Nottingha m to remain in the courthouse. Quite a large number remained and held an enthusiastic meeting. Houston is solid for Gordon, fand today's exercises were more of a sort of midsummer jubilee than a campaigning day.

The general was in one of his happiest moods and completely captiva' and his large audience, that was made up of the best people of Houston county. The laddes appeared especially to enjoy his discourse, and by the alternate smiling and fiashing countenances, one could tell how their sympathies rose and fell as they were swayed by the powerful cloquence of the varying moods of this most magnetic of southern speakers.

REESE AND CARLITON.

REESE AND CARLTON.

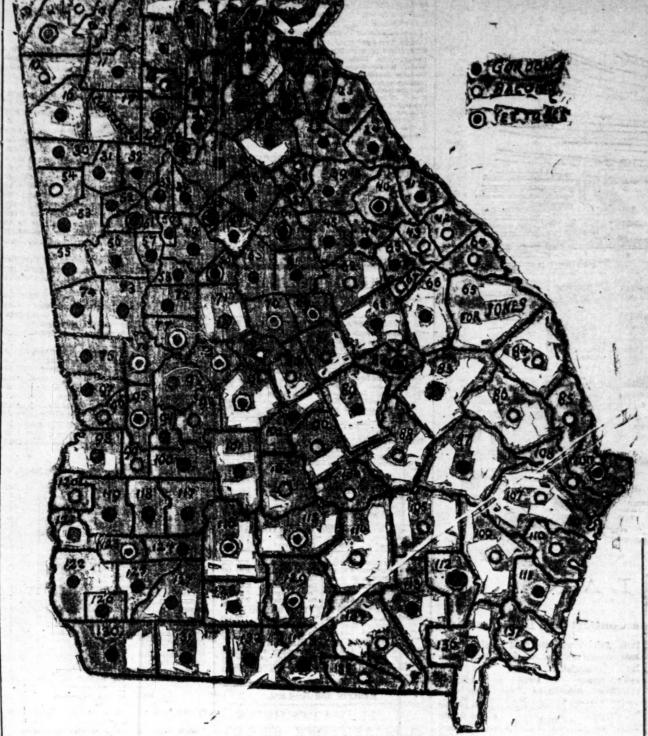

Hop. Henry Carlton Carries Morgan and Thereby Pushes Hon. Sea Reese. ATHENS, Ga., July 10.—[Sor]—Friends of Hon. Henry Carlton in Athen. are jubilan; tonight over his victory in Morgan county.

They consider that it ends the fight in the 8th congressional district and that it will elect their candidate to congress. The situation in this district is a peculiar one. There are twelve counties in the district and of these it is conceded that Carlton will carry seven, but the vote of these seven is but a bare majority over the vote of the four which it is believed that Mr. Reese will carry. The fight in Oglethorpe county is contested and on this hinges the result of the fight of the seven counties that Carlton will carry. Each has three votes in the convention. All of Reese's counties are five vote counties. In the begining of the campaign this compromise was effected by the managers of both sides. The small counties believing that they were entitled to a larger vote than that which they formerly cast. They claimed that it was an injustice to them to be allowed only two votes when the larger counties were allowed four votes each in the convention. Thus it was agreed that the counties of Clarke, Ocones, Madison, Hart, Elbert, Morgan and Franklin were allowed three votes each in convention and the conpties of Wilkes, Hancock, Oglethorpe, Putnam and Greene were given five. Carlton will carry all of the three vote counties, which will give him a vote of twenty-one in organizing the convention. Conceding Wilkes, which, however, is claimed as a probability by the Carlton men, to Reese, he will go into the convention with twenty votes. Thus it is that the lines will be drawn in a settlement of Oglethorpe's vote, which is contested. Each caudidate having a delegation from that coanty, and both claiming that their's is justly entitled to be seated. As Carlton will go into the convention with a majority, they claim that there is no doubt as to how Oglethorpe shall be allowed to cast her votes. If it goes for Carlton he will be the nominee. If it is given to Reese be will again represent the 8th district in congress. West Point and General Gordon. West Foint and General Gordon.

....Hart 92..... We print today a map of the state of Georgia, which gives the vote on the gubernatorial race. Our object in this is to show the geographical aspect of the campaign. There are some points that will attract attention. To begin with, General Gordon has not lost a county in the fifth congressional district. He has lost only one county in the fourth con-gressional district. In southwest Georgia, where it was charged that he was weak, he has proven to be irresistable, carrying nearly every county. He lost four counties in the seventh district. In Mr. Bacon's own district, the 6th. Bacon and Gordon have each carried three counties with five yet to act, of which Gordon will certainly get a majority. With this exception, and the first and third districts General Gordon has carried every district.

General Gordon rose above all local influences. A notable instance of this is furnished by a glance at Clarke county. Ordinarially Clarke county has had the bulk of northeast Georgia with her. Being the largest town in that section, of strong intellectual force, fine

McRAE, Ga., July 10 .- [Special.] -Oae of the most riotous and disorderly mass meetings yet heard of in the state, was held at this place today, for the purpose of electing gubernatorial and sena torial delegates from Telfair county. The interest of the governor's election having to a great extent cooled down on account of General Gordon's recooled down on account of General Gordon's re-cent victories, the struggle was between McArthur and Crisp for congress, but as Judge Crip's election too, is also a surety, the friends of McArthur as a compliment to him, brought out their whole strength to carry the county for him. The county was flooded with whisky. The result was the meeting broke up in a general drunken row, and for some time there seemed to be no chance for an election. After several hours delay, many of the citizens became disgusted and went home. Some sort of an organization was effected, and the election proceeded, resulting in a small majority for Bacon and

It is currently reported here and generally believed that Mr. Avant will not make the race. He has, however, made no public announcement of the course he intends to pursue. Hon. W. G. Brantley has told his friends to consider him a candidate. A great many think he will have no opposition.

WAYCROSS, Ga., July 10 .- [Special.]-The senatorial convention of the 5th district met her senatorial convention of the 5th district met here to day to nominate a senator. The majority rule was, after some discussion, adopted. A resolution indorsing the railroad commission in its present form and instructing the nominee of the convention to support it, was unanimously adopted. Messrs. H. A. Mattox and F. B. Simmons, both of Clinch county, were put in nomination, and on the second ballot Mr. Simmons was nominated, receiving all prices to Mr. Mattox 29. second ballot Mr. Simmons was nominated, receiving 81 votes to Mr. Mattox 29.

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga., July 5, 1886,—To the Voters of DeKaib County: This being DeKaib's time under the rotation system, to present a man for state senator of the 5th senatorial district, I have concluded, at the request of many of my friends from different portions of the county, to affer myself as a candidate for that position, subject to the action of the voters of DeKaib county. social and commercial connections, she has usually led the way for a dozen of the counties of northeast Georgia. In this campaign she has failed to carry a single county that touches her borders. Madison, Jackson, Gwinnett, Walton, Oconee and Oglethorpe have all gone for Gordon, and make a solid ring around Athens in which there is not a single break for Bacon. With the possible exception of Banks county not a single county in northeast Georgia has voted with Clarke. To an almost equal degree has Richmond failed to exert her ordinary influence. Columbia was carried by six votes just as the race open-ed, and McDuffie shortly afterward. Outside of this everything except Glasscock in the territory usually in sympathy with Richmond has gone for Gordon. Jefferson county, in Richmond's senatorial district, went for Gordon by an overwhelming majority. Warren, Taliaferro, Lincoln, Elbert, Hart and other counties followed suit. In Bibb county the same thing has been even more noticeable. Two counties in Bibb's own senatorial district,

The victory won by General Gordon is, all things considered, in our opinion, the most brilliant in American politics. He started the race when there were eighteen votes against him. He captured the first county he fought d from that small beginning checked an instant until he passed the major-ity line. He was not supported by a single daily paper in the state outside of Atlanta and nine-tenths of the weekly papers were against him. In spite of this he is nominated by the most overwhelming majority ever given to any man in a contested race in Georgia The map that we print will show that hi strength is not confined by any geographica limit, nor dependent upon any sectional feel ing. Wherever the name of Georgian is re sponded to, there Gordon is beloved and resist

J. S. JAMES INDORSED. A Splendid Tribute From His Neighbors and

SALT SPRINGS, Ga., July 10. — Editors Constitution: At a meeting of the citizens of Douglas, county, held here today, about 1,200] being present, Judge Stewart, Colonel Mynatt and Protessor J. G. Camp addressed dur people on the issues of the day, after which loud and prolonged calls were made for Hon. J. S. James, who responded in one of his happiest efforts. This being right near where he was born and reised, he stands deservedly high with all the people, and his adpearance on the rostrum was the signal for renewed chearing and applause. The people seemed to he wild with excitement, and after his speech was closed the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

cheering and applause. The people seemed to be wild with excitement, and after his speech was closed the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

We, the people of Douglas county, in mass meeting assembled, do hereby submit to the people of the thirty-sixth senatorial district, that in each and every election we have stood squarely to the people of Coweta county, and have done all in our bower to elect her citizens to office, in all contexts, in which Douglas had a voice. We further submit that in the last senatorial convention, a resolution was offered by a delegate from Coweta, stating that the rotation system should still prevail in his senatorial district, which resolution was unanimously adopted by the convention, and under this rotation system, Coweta's candidate was nominated and elected. We further submit that the rotation system has always prevailed in this district and we had ever it in the only rule that will instruct democratic harmany in the district. The refer we, the people of feet that country, hereby adopt the following resolutions:

1. That we condemn the action of Coweta's convention on the 6th inst. In passing a resolution to a brogate the rotation system in this anatorial district, as being unjust, next selfent and spanist the usages of the party in this district and system; and expectally so, until Douglas and Campbellshall have head the senators, and here say that we will do all that we can to elect the candidate of Campbell's choice at the next senatorial election two years hence, and we exercisely ask and request that all the good people of the countries of Campbell's choice at the next senatorial election two years hence, and we exercisely ask and request that all the good people of the countries of Campbell to cowe and Meciweller will cooperate with us in carrying out this intention, and in malinaming the rotation system.

intention, and in maintaining the rotation system.

3. That in the person of Hon. J. S. James, the gentleman Douglas has precented as fer choice for senator this time, we have presented to the district a gentleman well worthy of the people's confidence; one well qualified and fitted for the position of senator; and one whom Douglas is proud of as a citizen. His sbility cannot be questioned, and we know he is untiring in energy, strictly sober, is wide awakeen all public questions affecting the people's interest, is a good business man, an nonerable gentleman, and is the decided choice of over four-fiths of the people of the county, and that in him our people have implicit confidence. His record as a public servant is clear and above repressed, and as a citizen gentlemyn and public servant, we heartily commend him to the district, and eardestly insist that Cowets shall as far as possible remedy the wrong done/him in their convention of the 6th inst, and invite the people of the district of arsist on in nominating and electing him to the servate. avartily commend him to the district, and eardestly insist that Coweta shall, as far as possible remedy the wrong donehim in their convention of the 6th inst, and invite the people of the district to assist us in nominating and electing him to the senate.

4. That we condemn, in unmeasured terms, the action of Colonel J. V. Edge, one of Douglas' citizens, in going to Newman and speaking against the rotation system, and regard his action in the premises to be wholly to gratify his political enmity to the Hon' J. S. James to do which he would forever debar the county of Douglas from her rights as a member of the 36th senstorial district.

5. That these proceedings be published in The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION, and that every paper in the district be requested to copy the same.

Riding through Grant's park last week, one of the staff of this paper returned to the city by Anderson street. This street was a revelation, and is one of the pretiest drives in the city. Just east of Capitol avenue a number of solid citizens have bought, and have built handsome cottage homes. Within two blocks of Capitol avenue a little town has sprug up, called by the residents Haygood town. While many have been complaining of business depression, Mr. W. H. Haygood has been putting homes within the reach of a large class of citizens who cannot purchase such places as they desire, by selling lots and building such houses as the buyer wishes, taking one fourth cash and the baisnee on monthly and quarterly instalments. The Metropolitan street car line now runs out Anderson street, and this section of Atlanta is daily getting more attractive.

fierce skirmishes took place. A band of guerrilas had taken po ession of the Missouri railroad, and burned the bridges, tore up the rails, and brought about a desolation that half doven battles would not have caused. "I met with an adventure at this time which evidences the bloody and ruthless character of these outlaws.

"I think it was about the last of December that I started from the command for a small station some twenty miles distant.

"I had business with a gentleman in the village, and rode across the country, intending to leave my horse-I owned a good one at the time-with my acquaintance, and return with the supply train, which was expected at that

"The day was as bad a one as I could have well chosen; the bleak air swept over prairies, chilling horse and man to the very bone. "I should have waited for a fairer day; but the train was expected up in the morning, I was anxious to go, and had already been delayed several days.

"So I started early, and rode along cheerfully enough for the first five miles, when a genu-ine western storm arose, and began to rage with the fury that is only witnessed in those treeiess districts.

"I was soon soaked through to the skin, the rain beat upon my face fiercely, and I wished myself back at camp, or anywhere else out of "The fearof losing my way added still more to my distress, for there were no fences or other land marks, and the ground was being fast covered by the beating snow, which suc ceeded the rain.

"My clothing was frozen stiff, and the neck and breast of my horse was covered with sheets of frozen breath and blood which had oved from his swelling nostrils.

"I must find shelter, I thought, or perish in the most horrible manner.
"Suddenly I noticed smoke arising in the distance. No house was visible, and it has seemed remarkable to me that I observed the smoke, a fortunate chance was the cause, per-

"No house was to be seen, the place was in the hellow of the prairie, and I rode within twenty rods of the door ere I saw the way.

"A band of butlaws might be harboring here, and then I would wish myself outside again, cold as it was.

"Speaking kindly to the horse, who stretched s noce against me for warmth, I fastened the idle to a shrub and stole cautiously toward the house.

"Making a circuit, I approached from the back of the building. It was a poor affair, the habitation of a prairie farmer, evidently; but there was shelter for man and beast.

"As I came up the door at the side opened. I had but time to escape around the corner when three men issued out.

"They were rough looking fellows, wa m'y clad, and I at once concluded to give th m's wide berth.

House is one which never fools the people. He has so many facts of deep interest to lay before the people that a draft upon the imagination is never necessary. His notices of today are brim full of interest, and when it is remembered that he only deals in facts, the bargains offered are something wonderful. His store was thronged with customers last week, and left delighted with the bargains offered, and large bundles marked the bussiness of the week. Captain Keely's patronage this week should be large. His stock, his prices and the indefatigable exertions made to enable him to lay "bargains" before the public entitle him to it. His parasols are marvels at the prices which they are being sold for. He never sells you anything "bogus." His Lonsdale is the genuine Lonsdale, as is everything else advertised. It will pay you well to examine his stock this week. John Keely's

Our old reliable West Point road came promptly to hand with its usual semi-annual dividend of three per cent, which is payable 15th instant and takes thereby still stronger hold upon the confidence of investors. The railroads centering here appear to have an unusual amount of business for the season and are prospering. The Americus, Preston and Lumpkin people are actively at work upon the preliminaries for the extension of their road. NEW YORK, July 10-C. L. Green & Co., in their NEW YORK, July 10—C. L. Green & Co., In their report on cotton futures today, say: It has been an active and nervous market all day with numerous and violent fluctuations on some conflict of indications as between the national and agricultural bureau report. As a rule the tendency seems to be to accept the crop showing as rather better than anticipated, and cash averaged slightly lower than last evening. The final upward flurry is being barely sustained, yet, notwithstanding considerable unloading, the market has developed excellent absorbing capacity. A large spot business is doing on spinning account.

THE CHICAGO MARKET. Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Produce.

Bpecial to The Constitution.

CHICAGO, July 10—There was an active and unsettled feeling in wheat again today. The market opened weak and nearly 1c lower, owing to the rains of last night and heavy speculative offerings, especially from some of the winter wheat markets. Reports of hot weather in the northwest caused renewed buying, and when the government crop report was shown, indicating a decrease of fully 26 million bushels from the June estimate of the crop, caused renewed buying, advancing 1%c from inside figures and closed ½c higher than yosterday. Corn and oats were both active and closed stronger and higher.

Provisions were moderately active and closed Special to The Constitution.

HOW IT LOOKS NOW.

THE DAY AFTER THE GREAT PRO HIBITION FIGHT.

The Kimball House Case not Disposed of in Poli Court Because the City Autorney Thinks a Continuance Best—The Scenes About the Hotel and on the Sidowalk, Etc.

The Kimball house wine, liquor and beer room, where the fluid can be had by the quart, was in full blast yesterday from early morn-

The police did not interfere in any way with the proceedings.

The war between the prohibitionists and the Kimball house proprietors of Friday was the one theme discussed yesterday. On all sides the question was discussed. The friends of liquor gloried and designted in what they called their victory, while the prohibition declared that the proceedings was shameful, and that the courts had no right to interfere. Mr. Martin came in for much abuse and much praise The liquor men declared that and that he or the city would have to furnish music for some one to dance by. The prohis, on the contrary, said that Mr.! Martin had done exactly right, and that Atlanta would be better off with more citizens like him.

"Why," said an enthusiastic prohi, "that man Martin, has made himself near and dear to every lover of order, law and good morals in the state, and his conduct yesterday will redown to his honor and to the benefit of the town. He has got plenty of backbone, and if the courts had just as much nerve as he had the Kimball house bar would be closed up now."

ANOTHER OPINION. "Yes; you mean if the courts had as m gall as Martin's got," said an anti. "W that man had no more authority to direct Connolly to do what he did than I have."

"But he's a member of the police commis-sion," said the prohi, "and he did have the sion," said the prom, and in right."

"But the courts have said they did by the injunction granted and as I was saying he had no right to interfere and direct Connolly. Then too he says that he was acting as a citi-

Such dialogues were heard all over the city yesterday and in many instances the disput-ants became warm enough to fight.

THE CROWDS ON THE SIDEWALK.

During the day the sidewalk in front of the two saloons was well filled with people but the crowd was not half so large as on the previous day. It was generally on the move too. In the forenoon the crowd stood around as though expecting another interference but as the day wore on and no interference came and the impression went about that none would occur the crowd began

HOW IT LOOKED YESTERDAY.

The scenes about the Kimball house and the Bonanza yesterday were much the same as those of Friday, except the police interfer-ence scene. At the usual hour in the mornence scene. At the usual hour in the morning the doors were thrown open and a full quota of attendants were behind the bar. At the Kimball a dozen or two white pitchers were arranged in military platoons with a military regularity and precision upon the table in front of the beer kegs. Behind the pitchers the bright shining face of a bell boy and the smiling countenance of a bartender appeared. Both had on white aprons and white jackets, and as they stood silently and statuesque like awaiting an early caller, they gave no indication of the warm times through which they had just passed. About seven o'clock two gentlemen entered the place by opposite doors and met in front of the beer keg.

"Morning," said one. "Have you had your merning drink?"

"Morning quart, you mean." answered the

"Morning quart, you mean." answered the other. "It used to be morning drink, old boy, but its quart now."

"So it is. Have you had your morning quart then?"

"No; just come for it."

'Then s'pose we chip in and take a quart together. I can't drink a quart by myself."

"All right, here's my dime," was the answer, as he laid a dime on the table.

IT DON'T GO. The other man dropped his dime beside it, and asked for a quart.
"Can't do it," said the man behind the table. "Can't do it?" said the two customers in a urprised tone.

'That's what," I said. "Why, ain't you selling beer?" he asked.
"Yes, I'm selling beer, but not that way."
"What way?"

"Why two of you chippin' in and buyin' a dime's worth each. That's sort o' retail and I can't sell any 'cordin' to law. If one of you wants to buy and take it out you two can drink it and then pay one another your dime back."

"Oh, that's it, eh? Then give me a quart o' beer," said one. "And give me a quart too," said the other.
"Cordin' to law, the bar tender sold two quarts where one would have done other-

THE CROWD DIMINISHES. Later in the day, the rush and jam was great. A constant stream of men was filing in great. A constant stream of men was filing in and out of the beer room. Some would enter through the Kimball house, some through the liquor house and some through the door to the beer room direct. Two generally came together. One would have the quart pitcher filed, and taking it by the handle carry it gently out, the other following close behind—a neculiar smile—such as a schoolboy gently out, the other following close behind—a peculiar smile—such as a schoolboy wears when detected throwing a paper ball across the school room would play over their faces as they encountered a friend probably bent on the same mission. With the pitchers the purchasers pass through the crowd into the saloon proper. Here the counter was always lined with men, who were holding glass and pitcher in hand. The best of humor prevailed. No one was mad. No one though to getting mad. The majority who drank did so on account of the novelty of the thing.
They talked, joked and laughed.
How THEY TALK ABOUT IT.

HOW THEY TALK ABOUT IT. "This is prohibition on the hard shell," said

"It's prohibition by the wholesale," said another.

"No, it ain't. It's prohibition by the quart," said enother.

"Well, I don't care a darned what kind o' prohibition it is just so I get what I want," ant in smother.

put in another.

In the Bonanzo, a hundred bright new tin

In the Bonanzo, a hundred bright new tin cans each holding a quart, were arranged on a counter at the end of the saloon. The cans were about six inches tall, and three inches across at the top. Jimmie McMahen, Al. Bronck and Dave Hollis were behind the counter. A man who wanted beer would walk up to the counter, pick up a tin can, walk across to the beer keg ard hand up his cup. The attendant would fill the cup and take the change, and the man with the cup would go off and drink it. Here, as in the Kimball, the best ol order provailed. The public generally, both prohis and antis, has been anxious to know what started the fight. It is generally believed that it originated in the session of the executive committee of the Young Men's prohibition club which was held in Mr. Henry Hillyer's office Friday at noon. An Atlantisn who has a pretty large at noon. An Atlantian who has a pretty large ear—an ear that hears everything—is author-ity for the following:

THIS MAY HAVE BEEN THE CAUSE.

On Thursday the Rev. Dr. Hawthorne was down town, and, passing the Kimball house, observed the crowd. He soon ascertained that beer and wine and liquor were being sold by the quart. Soon after this he was seen in close consultation with prominent prohis, and the next morning the call for the meeting of the executive committee was issued. The call is presumed to have been the result of the dector's calloquy with the prohis. During the session of the committee the situstion was discussed. Of course the members of the committees did not approve of the transfer of the Mabra Heense and consider some plan to stop the sale. The committee, it is said, was unanimous in the belief that the license could not be transferred. After angling about for some way to stop the Kimbail, it is said that the committee invited Mr. Martin's presence because of his well known prohi feelings and his position as chairman pro tem of the police commission. Mr. Martin joined in the discussion and when he left began his charge upon the Kimbail. It is claimed by the bigeared Atlantian that in the meeting Mr. Martin was asked to take the steps he took officially and was pledged the full support of the meeting and the prohi party, but whether this is true or not cannot be said.

WHAT OTHER COMMISSIONERS THINK.

The other members of the police commission, or rather two other members, Messra. Paul Jones and John Stephens, consider Mr. Martin's conduct as discourtesy toward them. During the heat of the fight Mr. Stephens approached Chief Connolly and asked:

"Under what orders are you acting?"

"Police Commissioner Martin's order," was the snewer.

"Was there a meeting of the board?"

Was there a meeting of the board?" Then where did Mr. Martin get his or-

"Don't know, sir." During the same afternoon Mr. Jones encountered Mr. Martin, and asked:
"Why are you doing this, Mr. Martin?"
"Because I think it is right."

"Have you the authority from the board of colice commissioners to do so?"
"No, sir, I have not, I am acting as a citi-

"Well, if you expect me to sanction officially what you are doing now you are mistaken," said Mr. Jones. "I don't expect your sanction," said Mr.

"I don't expect your sanction," said Mr.
Martin.
"You can put your mind at rest on that point," said Mr. Jones.
The dialogue was in good humor and without any display of bad feeling.
WHAT MR. MARTIN SAID.
While the fight was being conducted a Constitution reporter asked Mr. Martin:
"Are you acting as police commissioner in this matter?"

this matter?"

"No, sir, I am acting as a citizen who leves good order and law."

Yesterday, in discussing the affair, Mr. Jones said:

"Had Captain English been here he would have acted differently. At least, judging by the past, he would."

"What would he have done?"

"Done what he has done before."

"What's that?"

'What's that?" "What's that?"

"Call a meeting of the board as its chairman, and do just what the majority ordered done. The majority would probably have ordered just what Mr. Martin did, but then it would have been done properly."

NOT YET TRIED.

The case against Mr. Mabra, which was

The case against Mr. Mabra, which was made in police court, was not tried yesterday. Judge Anderson passed the case to await the hearing of the injunction and the decission finally. Should the court grant the injunction permanently the case against Mr. Mabra will be dismissed, as his conduct in selling liquor could not be construed as illegal. On the other hand should the injunction be refused and his conduct be declared illegal he will be tried.

tried.

No county licenses were transferred yesterday because those who want to buy are waiting to see the results of the present case.

Mr. Charles Thorn, the grocer at 112 Whitehall street, was a prominent prohibitionist. He was a member of the club, and worked day and night for the cause. When the bars closed Mr. Thorn found himself encumbered with a county license, and at once began disposing of liquors under it. Yesterday, it is understood that he refused $4,000 for that license.

cense. THE PROHIBITIONISTS EXPLAIN. The Young Men's Prohibition club appears to have constituted itself first lieutenant of the civil authorities in the effort to enforce prohibition. Interviews with several members of the club yesterday developed about this state of affairs:

No further efforts will be made to prevent the sale of liquor at the Kimball house and the Big Bonanza until Judge Clark hears argument in the injunction cases pending before him and decides them. If he decides against the legality of the transfer of the licenses, the prohibitionists will at once take active steps to stop the sale. If, however, Judge Clark de-cides that the transfer is legal, then nothing will be done but to quietly await the expira-tion of the licenses.

Mr. J. G. Thrower said last night:

"I wish the law to be obeyed. If the business being conducted under Mabra's and Bronck's licenses is legal, I am in favor of letting it alone until the licenses expire."

THE LICENSE LAW.

A CONSTITUTION reporter consulted a dozen different lawyers, yesterday, relative to the law under which licenses to sell liquor by the quart are issued. They all agreed that there was such a law, but whether or not it permitted the business conducted under such licenses to be transferred from one place to another, they could not say.

censes to be transferred from one place to another, they could not say.

Regarding licenses to retail liquor, section 1421 of the code declares:

Such licenses do not anthorize the persons to whom issued to retail at more than one place in the county, which place must be istated in the license. Different licenses are necessary for different places.

Regarding licenses to sell by the quart, the law is silent as to transfers. It has long been the custom of ordinaries and boards of county commissioners to transfer such licenses from one place of business to another. It is claimed that as the law does not declare that they shall not be transferred, it is not illegal to do

The injunction cases pending before Judge Clark will probably cause the question to be settled for all time to come.

BREAD

An Excellent Bread-Jack's Famous Cream Bread Still Growing in Favor.

When a person uses good bread he always wants it sgain. That is one point in favor of Jack's famous cream bread. It is the most wholesome famous cream bread. It is the most wholesome made, as nothing but the finest grade of flour and no chemicals are used in manufacturing it. Everywhere this brand has been used it has had an unprecedented sale. The Capitol City Bakery company are receiving orders every day from the surrounding towns, and the dealers in the city will now use no other. This is all due to the fact that it is absolutely pure, much sweeter and withat better than any other bread that can be bought. Jack does not sell it by weight, but his loaves contain more bread for less money than any you can buy in the city, and he delivers right to your door, which is a decided advantage and saves much trouble. If you want bread that is pure and fresh, and that physicians recommend, don't fail to buy Jack's cream bread. All orders, either in the city or outside, sent to the Capitol City Bakery company, will receive prompt attention.

The race for the Southern league penuant romises to be the most exciting in the annals jof equally matched. Each has strengthened itself by the purchase of new players. The best men of the two disbanded clubs have found places in the others. A half dozen games separates the leader from the hindermost club in the league. Whenever one club shows a single weak point on the field, the opposing club is sure to win. It is likely that the race for the pennant will end with the six clubs bunched under less than a margin of six games. It is possible that less than three games will separate the champions from the lowest club. Under this phenomenal fight for the pennant the substitute of the pennant played that the post loving public a race that will be memorable in the annals of field games, and restore baseball to its highest popularity. It has all the conditions for a contest nats will center national interest, and bring the richest results to each club in the league if it is properly managed. On the other hand, if there is handicapping of one club at the expense of the cthers; if there is unfair treatment or doubtful methods; if there should be, as there was at the close of last season, the throwing of games to one club in order to defeat another, baseball will receive it death-blow in the south, and will be classed hereaster with disreputable sport. I Allanta is prepared to take the penalty of her prominence. The champions of one season always fight at disadvantage the next season. There is an inevitable disagsition to unite the weaker clubs sagainst the stronger, and make common sympathy between the vanquished against the victor; but the promotors of the league should see to it that this fieling does not become uncontrollible. We notice, for his fairly we not the clubs are cherubs, while cor instance, that every paper in a league cluy praises the players of every club except those of Alanta. Two clubs play in a city. The local paper praises the visitors as gentiemanly and honorable. The Atlanta is no better than the rest and he players of the whole league were drawn from the same of the club is welcome of Augusta is very anxious to see Atlanta win the ennant, and is pulling in that direction all the Shaffer and Mappes will be the battery for At lanta tomorrow, and Baker and Schellhasse for Nashville,

It is thought that Denny Lyons will be here Monday to take charge of the third base in his usual excellent manner.
The Attantas have not been doing any batting during the past three weeks, and if one of them

hould manage to hit a ball, it is thought the grand tand would scream. The public would like to know why they have let down in their slugging.

The "H. W. Gradys" will play the University club a match game of baseball Monday evening at the fair grounds in Athens. The Atlanta team will return from Savannah this merning, and will be in good condition for the game with Nashville tomorrow.

Billy Taylor, the original and fat Billy, is with the Nashville team, and will furnish an immense amount of amusement to the audience next Mon-

The grounds next Monday will be crowded, as the Nashville team is regarded as very strong and always furnish excelent baseball. The race for the pennant in the Southern league will be the most exciting and brilliant ever wit-nessed. Manager Purceil says that Atlanta will win the pennant.

Judging by the games of the past three weeks, t would appear that Macon is the slugging team of the Southern league, and that the Atlantas are mly amateurs.

Mitchell, the great pitcher who was signed by Atlanta at the first of the season, is still complain-ing about hisarm, and says that he will not be able to play this season. able to play this season.

The present games between Nashville and Atlanta are the last that will be played by the Nashville club on the Atlanta grounds this season. Bitman, Dundon and Goldsby expects to see all their friends out to witness the contests.

Cahill pitched a game the other day for the St. Louis league team against the Kansas City team in a championship game, and Cahill by his superior pitching won the game by a score of 4 to 2. At-lantas always said that Cahill was a pitcher.

There will be some coaching done on the Atlanta grounds during the series of games between Atlanta and Nashville, and it will be worth the price of admission to hear Goldsby talk; while Cline and George Shafer will have something to say for Atlanta.

The teams for Monday will be as follows: Mappes... Lynch.... Stricker... Williams. Cline.... Purcell.... Hogan... 3. Shaffer ...Catcher. First base... Second base... Third base... ... Short stop... .. Left field... ...Center field.....Right field.

"ABSOLUTE ZERO." Nice Cold to Think of in This Weather, Minus 200 Degrees.

At the Royal institution recently, Professor At the Royal institution recently, Professor Cewar exhibited for the first time solid oxygen. Last year the professor gave a lecture before the prince of Wales on liquid air, but although he and other experimenters had made liquid oxygen in small quantity, yet no one had succeeded in getting oxygen into the solid condition. The successful device employed at the Royal institution depends upon allowing liquid oxygen to expand into a partial vacuum, when the enormous absorption of heat which accompanies the expansion, results in the production of the solid sobstance. Oxygen in this condition resembles snow in appearance and has a temperature about 200 degrees centigrade below the freezing point of water. A supply of this material will enable chemists to approach the absolute zero of temperature.

REV. FATHER NEYRON.

AN OLD SOLDIER WHO WAS AT THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO.

Burgeon, Warrior, Priest and University Professor He Knew Marshal Ney-His Opinion of Na-poleon-Ney's Treachery-His Ordors to Prepare for an Attack-Waterloo.

From the Chicago Tribune. There is living within one hundred miles of Chicago a venerable man who in his day has been a surgeon, soldier, priest and university ofessor. He was a surgeon in the army of the First Napoleon, accompanied the emperor during the campaign against Russia and was present at the great conqueror's downfall at Waterloo. As a priest his history is of special interest to the Catholics and old settlers of Chicago, as he was the second man, Marquette being the first, to celebrate mass within the limits of this city. This man is the Rev. Louis

Joseph Neyron, professor of anatomy and medicine in the university of Notre Dame, near South Bend, Ind. Father Neyron is in his 96th year, but he shows none of the usual signs of advanced age. His intellect is as clear as it was fifty years ago, he does not use spectacles or a cane, is as erect as a soldier, and, in a word, is in complete control of all his faculties. During the commencement exercises of the university his appealance on the campus attracted the attention of hundreds of the visitors when some of the students made his identity known. He was walking up the shady avenue leading to the piazza of the main building attired in his cassock and a black slouch hat, and was accompanied by a pet terrier that is his constant companion in his walks. Every one who saw him remarked his striking resemblance to the pictures of Victor Hugo. He is above the medium height, has broad shoulders, surmounted by a large, well-shaped Joseph Neyron, professor of anatomy and ders, surmounted by a large, well-shaped head, partially bald at the top and covered at the sides and back with flowing white locks. His beard is almost white. When he roticed that he was attracting attention he turned from the walk and went over to a turned from the walk and went over to a fountain in the centre of the grounds, closely followed by the dog. The priest sat down on the curbirg of the fountain, and at a signal from him the dog jumped into the water and began to swim about.

Several well known Chicago people, accompanied by a Tribune reporter, went over to talk to him. He said: "Myself and my friend Jack here are taking our morning stroll. Jack is a smart dog and is a terror to rate and snakes. He has a special fancy for catching enakes and shaking their heads off."

off."
"Were you at the battle of Waterloo, father?" some one in the group abruptly ask-The old man looked at the questioner a mo-ment and replied: "Well, now, who has been telling you about me? Yes, sir, I was at the battle of Waterloo, and I was there as a soldier."

"You must be well advanced in years?" "I am in my 96th year, but I have a brother in France who is several years older than my-self, and isn't married yet, either."

A Tribune reporter sought the venerable priest in his room in the infirmary of the university:
"Won't you kindly favor me with some of your reminiscences of the First Napoleon, the campaign against Russia and the battle of Waterloo?" asked the scribe.

Waterloo?" asked the scribe.

"So you are a newspaper man, ch? Well, you must excuse me from talking at any length, for I have many times refused to be interviewed. Of what use can my stories and opinions be to the public? What you would ask of me has all been recorded in history, and the narrations or opinions of a poor old man situated as I am would be of no use to any one."

"Did you know Marshal Ney personally?"

"Indeed I did, to my sorrow."

"There must have been a great many stories

"Indeed I did, to my sorrow."
"There must have been a great many stories afloat to the effect that Marshal Ney was never executed, but was allowed to escape and that he came to settle in this country."

"Yes, I have heard a story to that effect. It is as amusing as it is ridiculous. I am positive beyond any doubt that he was shot. I had comrades in some of the companies of soldiers from which the detail of men was drawn for the execution. Depend upon it that, had the men to whom he said "My comarades, fire" been disposed to let him escape, the English would have seen to it that they did not.
"Did the soldiers sympathyze with Ney in his downfall?"

"If they did they indulged in a bit of false sentimentality. Ney was a traitor, nothing but a traitor, to his sovereign, to his country, his own honor, and the confiding soldiers whom he hoodwinked and voluntarily turned over to Napoleon to be slaughtered at the battle of Waterloo. He richly deserved his fate, and I don't believe that the sad remnant of the worn-out army that he betrayed shed many tears over him."

"Were you with Ney's army when he turned it over to Napoleon?"
"I was, and I well remember the day that it over to Napoleon?"

"I was, and I well remember the day that Ney's act of treachery took place. Ney's and the straggling army of Napoleon met at Oloe bridge, better known at the time as the Bridge of the Holy Ghost. Napoleon's army was encamped a few miles from the bridge opposite our lines. The morning after our encampment we saw some flags of truce in advance of Napeleon's army, and it was then that the men first began to suspect Ney's plans, but the suspicions were not even whispered. Soon the flags disappeared, and Ney gave orders to prepare for an attack. We were prepared to attack and marched on to the bridge. When we reached the opposite side of the bridge we noticed about a dozen men advancing from Napoleon's army on herseback bearing flags of truce. Our army, which all told did not exceed 20,000 men, came to a halt. The men on horseback advanced and the center one of the group proved to be Napoleon himself. At sight of him Ney and his staff dismounted. Napoleon also dismounted, and was warmly embraced by Ney and his officers. Of course a shout in honor of Napoleon went up from our ranks. Well, history has recorded the rest. We were him Ney and his staff dismounted. Napoleon also dismounted, and was warmly embraced by Ney and his officers. Of course a shout in honor of Napoleon went up from our ranks. Well, history has recorded the rest. We were forced to combine with Napoleon's army of boys between the ages of 18 and 20 years and go on to Waterloo and defeat."

"Were you taken prisoner at Waterloo?"

"Yes, although I might have escaped had I not stopped in my flight to attend to the wounds of an officer to whom I was much attached, Gen. Pupuno. As I was dashing along on my horse, dodging a storm of bullets, I saw the General stretched upon the ground, bleeding from a fatal wound in the shoulder. I dismounted to dress the wound, and while I was doing so a squad of Pressians came upon me and captured me. They stripped me of nearly all my clothing and what money I had and turned me over to the English army, where there was a lack of surgeons, nearly all the English surgeons having deserted their posts. General Lorton was the commander of the division to which I was assigned, and I was treated by him and his army with the utmost kindness und gentlemanly courtesy. The general allowed me a stipend, and put none of the usual restrictions of prisoners of war upon me. When I was taken to Paris by the English I found myself a complex prisoner, so to speak. I was a prisoner of Louis XVIII, because I was in Néy's deserting army, and a prisoner of the English because I was taken while fighting them. However, the French minister of war knew that I was with Napoleon against my will, and he forthwith assigned me to duty as surgeon-in-chief to the First regiment of artillery. I went to report this assignment to the English general, and he positively refused to surrender me. He said, with a good-natured laugh: 'No, Neyron, you are our prisoner, and we need prisoners of the army at Calais and Dunkirk.' It is needless to say that the order was carried out. In fact I never asw the French minister of war again. The English allowed me double pay from the time o priest?"

"Well, to begin with, I was a soldier against my will, but at the conclusion of the war I made up my mind that I would eisher be an officer in the regular army, or what was left the regular army, or a priest. After due con-sideration I chose the priesthood, and entered the seminary of Lyons, and after studying theology for three years, I was ordained a priest for the diocese of Bellay in the spring of 1828."

"How did you happen to join the American

"How did you happen to join the American mission?"

"In the year 1835 Bishop Brute, of Vincennes Ind., sent an appeal to the young priests of France asking such of them as had the apostolic spirit to volunteer for the western missions. I recognized the appeal as a voice calling me from home to do the work of my Master in a foreign land. So did a young friend of mine, Father Shafer. We obtained leave from our bishop to join the American mission, and forthwith started to join Bishop Brute. I liked Bishop Brute, because, like myself, he had been a physician and surgeon before becoming a priest. In the early spring of 1836 Father Shafer and myself arrived at Vincennes and were welcomed by the bishop. Father Shafer was forthwith sent to Chicago and myself to New Albany, Ind.

MISSIONARY DUTY AND CHOLERA.
But in one year, during 1836, I had been on missionary duty in nearly every part of Illinois, Indiana and part of Kentucky. The ravages of the cholera in Kentucky rendered my services necessary there, and many poor victims died in my arms while I was administering the last sacraments to them. In 1837 Father Shafer died and was buried somewhere in services necessary there, and many poor victims died in my arms while I was administering the last sacraments to them. In 1837 Father Shafer died and was buried somewhere in the village of Chicago. Bishop Brute sent me to succeed him, with the understanding that as soon as Bishop Rosati, of St. Louis, sent a priest to Chicago I was to report back at Vincennes. I was stationed at Chicago not quite five weeks when Father St. Cyr, of St Louis, arrived there, having been sent to take charge of the mission by Bishop Rosati. Thus, you see I was the second pastor of the present great Catholic community of Chicago, not for a long time, it is true, but I don't think many people in Chicago know that I was ever priest in charge there, the general impression prevailing that Father St. Cyr was the first priest who had charge of the mission. Soon after my return to Vincennes I went with the Right Rev. Bishop Odin, first bishop of Galveston, to the Texas mission, arriving in New Orleans Christmas day in 1837, and in Galveston new year's day. After spending one year in Texas I returned, at the request of my bishop, to my first parish, New Albany, Ind, where I built the church of the Holy Trinity, and was pastor of Holy Trinity parish for twenty-seven years. I resigned the parish and came here twenty years ago on account of the rheumatism, which I had contracted while traveling through the malarial swamps doing missionary duty. Soon after I came here my rheumatism left me, and I decided to remain here. I teach my medical class every day, and take great pleasure in doing so. I wouldn't know what to do with myself unless I was actively engaged in some duty."

myself unless I was actively engaged in some duty."

"What is your opinion of Napoleon I?"

"He was the greatest soldier that ever lived. He had sound, good qualities, but the bad ones predominated in his character. True, he fought at first for the glory of France, but finally he sacrificed France, his faithful soldiers, and even himself to his own insatiable ambition I look upon him as the deliberate murderer of thousands upon thousands of brave soldiers whom he marched over the snow covered mountains of Russia for no other reason than to increase his own glory. What brave soldiers whom he marched over the snow covered mountains of Russia for no other reason than to increase his own glory. What cause had he for making war upon the emperor and people of Russia? No, the blood and bones of the Frenchmen whom he left lying on mountains, in valleys and roadways during that terrible winter march called to heaven for vengeance, and brought down upon his head the bitter curses of the thousands of widows and orphans he had made in France. He had no consideration for the comfort of his soldiers—in fact he hadn't for his own. He had no care except for the advancement of his personal glory. No, his soldiers did not love him, during and after the Russian campaign I mean; they detested and cursed him."

"Do you think he bad much religious feeling in his composition?"

"He undoubtedly had. He was a strange being, a veritable mystery in himself. With all his ambitious scheming, he never for a moment forgot his daily religious training, and I don't think he ever neglected to offer up a prayer of some sort morning and evening. He declared, when a prisoner on St. Helena, that the happiest day of his life was that upon which he made his first communion."

Father Neyron is the chaplain of the sisters whose duties bring them about the university and infirmary. He rises every morning, winter and summer, at 4 o'clock and celebrates mass for the sisters in the infirmary chapel at 5 o'clock. After mass he takes a walk of probably two or three miles. When breakfast is announced he is the first to take his seat at the faculty table in the senior refectory, and he enjoys the meal with a relish. He is never indisposed, and to all appearances

EVENTS OF THE WEEK ON THE SO-

Number of Pleasant Paragraphs About the Hap-penings in Society Circles—The Meetings of Clubs—Several Weddings Past and in Prospect—Notes of Various Sorts

The German given by the North Side German club, Thursday evening, at Moreland Park, was one of the most enjoyable ever given by the club. The german was led by Mr. Will Inman, who inroduced several new and attractive figures. The dancing was commenced at ten o'clock and con-tinued till a late hour. The park never was more attractive, and between dancing and promenading certainly most happily spent. This in all probabil ity will be the last german before next winter, and the pleasant drive to the city, the evening was and all present realizing the fact enjoyed themselves to their hearts' content. It was a late hour when the gay party returned home. The young ladies present were: Miss Willie Bell, Miss Franc Jones, Miss Hattie Colquitt, Miss Fannie Collier, Miss Fannie Gordon, Miss Ida Gartrell, Miss Manie Flanders, Miss Julia Sanders, Miss Mary McGhee, MissCarrie Crane, Miss Minnie May, Miss Nanaline Holt, Macon; Miss Watley, Richmond; Miss Wyly, Miss Pinkie Hunnicutt, Miss Annie Belle Maud, Miss Annie Van Winkle. The following young gentlemen attended: Messrs. Tom Peeple, Dunlay Judah, Will Irman, Joe Eddleman, Isaac Lovejoy, Andrew Anderson, Gordon Kiser, Frank Meador, Bun Wyly, Will Flanders, Bob Riley, Jim Hickey, John W. Grant, Harvey Johnson, Albert Howell, Bartow Glenn, James W. English, Jr., Will Martin, Will Drake, Henry Inman, Alex Hopkins, F. R. Walker, Charles Fuller, Sanford-Gay and Dr. Palmer.

One of the pleasantest parties that went with the excursionists Thursday to view Tallulah's picturesque scenery was from Marietta. Mrs. Monigomery, Misses Hattle Camp, Annie Gignilliatt, Montgomery, Wilson, Sessions, Northeutt; Messrs, J. J. Harper, Vickers, Miss R. A. Northeutt and Colonel Moultrie Sessions composed the party. A few gentlemen friends joined them at Atlanta, and together they enjoyed the day. The train re-turned too late for them to get back to Marietis; so they spent the night at the Kimball. Next morning they were escorted to the carshed by a

On last Wednesday evening, at Glen-Allen, the beautiful residence of Judge J. J. Martin, Mr. Fred J. Allen, a prosperous and popular young man of Atlanta, was united in marriage to Miss Carrie E. Martin, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Judge J. J. Martin, Rev. Mr. John Jones officiating. The event was a quiet one, but proved quite pleasant to those present. The charming couple have the congratulations and hearty good wishes of hosts of warm friends.

The young ladies of the First Baptist church will have a unique entertainment at the church next Thursday evening, July 15th. The young ladies will be in costume, and the decoraions, etc., will be of sunflowers.

A lawn party was given the members and friends of the E. T. club Friday evening at the elegant home of Mr. S. M. Inman, on Forsyth street It was one of the happiest and most brilliant af-fairs of the season. The spacious lawn in front of the house was brilliantly illuminated with num-erous colored lanters whose dim light was shed over the entire lawn. In front of the door a large lantern with "E. T. club" in transparent letters, was hung. In the centre of the lawn a tent was placed in which was stationed the orchestea which discoursed sweet music during the entire evening. By nine o'clock the young folks had ar-rived and until almost dawn the happy party kept up their festivities. In promenading and with the delightful convertation the evening was happily spent, and the occasion was one which will long be remembered by all prefent. During the evening a delightful supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Inman, as host and hostess. entertained in the charming manner for which entertained in the charming manner for which they are noted. They assisted in every possible way to further the enjoyment of all present, and it was to them that the pleasure of the evening was due. At a late hour the young folks dispersed, all agreeing that the evening was the happiest they had ever spent. The young ladies present were: Miss Nellie Inman, Miss Sallie Fannie Grant, Miss Maud Barker, Miss Hattle Inman, Miss Councils lackyon Wiss Large 1000, Miss Carricia Carnell. Wednesday evening at Trinity church Miss Minnie LaHatte was married to Mr. Charles Bed-ingfield. Long before the hour for the marriage the church was filled with friends and acquaintances of the comple to witness the ceremony. At six o'clock, as Professor Kruger played the beautiful wedding march, the attendants, Mr. Clifford Nean and Miss Annie LaHatte, and Mr. M. F. La-Hatte and Miss Mattie Perkins marched down the aisles and formed on either side the altar. The bride and groom followed and formed between the attendants. Rev. Mr. Lee performed the caremony in a beautiful and impressive manner. His prayer of blessing was touchingly eloquent, and his bene-diction overflowed with beautiful thoughts. The bride was dressed in tan surah, made en train, with duchess lace and small pearls. She carried a bouquet of flowers, the gift of the groom.

After the mairiage Mr. and Mrs. Bedingdeld, to gether with the attendants, repaired to the resilence of the bride's mother on Garnett street, where a delightful supper was served. Mt. and Mr. Bedingfield received many handsome pres-ents, among them a silver water service, an ice cream set, silver spoons and set of ladies. The groom is a young man who commands the respect of all who know him, and is a gentleman of excellent business qualifications. The bride is a young lady of culture and refinement, and has many friends in the city who extend congratulations and best wishes.

Miss Eva Carr, of this city, was married to Mr. J. D. Reeves, of St. Louis, Wednesday evening at the Third Presbyterian church. The church was beautifully decorated. At 8 o'clock Misses Macie Reeves and Nellie Nix, two pretty little misses entered the church and marched up the aisles. Each little girl was dressed in white and each bore a beautiful wreath of fragrant flowers each bore a beautiful wreath of fragrant howers, They were followed by the bridal party. As the party entered the church Mr. F. Deš, Helmer played Mendelsshon's famous wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. Keff Smith in the presence of a large number of friends. The attendants were Mr. Walter Barton, Mr. William Sherrah, Mr. Glenn Hendrix and Mr. Edwin Carr. After the ceremony the bridal party departed to the home of the bride, where a splendid repair was enjoyed. Mr. and Mr. Receys, left Thursday mount. enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves left Thursday morn-ing for San Francisco, and from there they go to St. Louis, their future home. The bride has a nost of friends won by her gentle disposition, and lovely character, who wish her a happy voyage through

The West Side club met Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. J. M. Stevens, on Larkin street. The president, Mr. Ben Doster, being absent, Mr. Jack Bagby presided. An imprompting gramme was rendered. It consisted of readings, rectfations and make, and was much enjoyed by all present. The next meeting of this cross will occur next Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. Ben Doster on Walker street.

What the Society People Have Been and Contemplate Doing. Atheas.

Gamma Chapter of the Kappa Alpha fraternity has issued beautifully engraved invitations for its annual banquet and ball at Dufree operahouse in Athens on Tuesday night, the 19th, of commencement week of the State university. On the night before, Monday, the 16th, the Athenseum will give a reception and ball at its elegant club rooms on Broad street, for which invitations are out. The chickeline's recention will also take place Tuesa reception and ball at its elegant club rooms on Broad street, for which invitations are out. The chembellor's reception will also take place Tuesday night, and the grand commencement ball Wedndesday night at DuPree opera house. Thus commencement week will be brilliant in its social gayeties. The week preceding will be scarcely less interesting. Miss Lizzie Bloomfield gives an elegant german to her young lady guests, and on Friday night Professor and Mrs. White will tender their annual reception to the senior class, at which will assemble the beauty and chivairy of the classic city. The event has for years been one of the most brilliant of commencement week. Deuce, love, volley, racket! This is not Deuce, love, volley, racket! This is not what, at first glance, it seems profanity, affection, fighting or fuss, but the fact that our social atmospheric is thick with such like expressions, merely indicates the craze for that simple and inoffensive first cousin of croquet, lawn-tennis. As to the lady players, of course they play well, for they do every this well. But of the men, a cursory inspection of a game or two forces us to admit that a few perhaps know how to play, quite a number think they hnow how to play, and all the rest know they know how to play, and all the rest know they know how the game ought to be played. The efforts of the second class are largely confined to graceful attitudinizing on the green sward, which is the more pronounced and frequent, in the ratio of the becomingness of knickerbockers and woollen snirts to their peculiar styles of beauty. The last class, envious of both the others because unable to play, and forbidden by good taste, physical conformation and regard for the feelings of others from donning the costume, constitute the know-all critical spectators of the games. But the players, in spite of heat and ignorant criticism, keep up their volleying and love, with an occasional deuce and a racket.

The social event of the last week was the meeting of the Novel club, at Mr. T. R. Ramspeck's residence last Friday night. The programme was of a rather unusual order and caused a very full attendance. It has been customary for the club to disduss some author and some special work ateach meeting, but at this meeting it was arranged to have the programme entirely original and to have each member of the club participate. As there are about twenty members this arrangement made the programme very long, although a number were excused, and more than three hours were required to accomplish its rehearsal. The interest did not flag, however, and both the participants and the honorary members who were present as guests, were well entertained throughent. The following articles were read:

EVENTS OF THE WEEK ON THE SO-

mber of Fleasant Paragraphs About the Hap nings in Society Circles—The Meetings of Clubs—Several Weddings Part and in Prospect—Notes of Various Borts

The German given by the North Side German club, Thursday evening, at Moreland Park, was one of the most enjoyable ever given by the club. The german was led by Mr. Will Inman, who ined several new and attractive figures. The dancing was commenced at ten o'clock and con tinued till a late hour. The park never was more attractive, and between dancing and promenading certainly most happily spent. This in all probability will be the last german before next winter, and the pleasant drive to the city, the evening was selves to their hearts' content. It was a late hor when the gay party returned home. The young ladies present were: Miss Willie Bell, Miss France Jones, Miss Hattie Colquitt, Miss Fannie Collier Miss Fannie Gordon, Miss Ida Gartrell, Miss Manie Flanders, Miss Julia Sanders, Miss Mary McGhee, MissCarrie Crane, Miss Minnie May, Miss Nanaline Holt, Macon; Miss Watley, Richmond; Miss Wyly Miss Pinkle Hunnicutt, Miss Annie Belle Maud Miss Annie Van Winkle. The followipg young gentlemen attended: Messrs. Tom Peeple, Dunlap Judah, Will Irman, Joe Eddleman, Isaac Lovejoy, Andrew Anderson, Gordon Kiser, Frank Meader, Bun Wyly, Will Flanders, Bob Riley, Jim Hickey, John W. Grant, Harvey Johnson, Albert Howell, Bartow Glenn, James W. English, Jr., Will Martin, Will Drake, Henry Inman, Alex Hopkins, F. R. Walker, Charles Fuller, Sanford Gay and Dr. Palmer.

One of the pleasantest parties that went with the excursionists Thursday to view Tallulah's picturesque scenery was from Marietta. Mrs. Montgomery, Misses Hattle Camp, Annie Giguli-Montgomery, Misses Hattie Camp, Annie Gignil-liatt, Montgomery, Wilson, Sessions, Northeutt; Messis. J. J. Harper, Vickers, Miss R. A. Northeutt and Colonel Moultrie Sessions composed the party.

A few gentlemen friends joined them at Atlanta; and together they enjoyed the day. The train returned too late for them to get back to Marietia so they spent the night at the Kimball. Next morning they were escorted to the carshed by a

On last Wednesday evening, at Glen-Allen the beautiful residence of Judge J. J. Martin, Mr. Fred J. Allen, a prosperous and popular young man of Atlanta, was united in marriage to Miss Carrie E. Martin, the beautiful and accomplished daughter of Judge J. J. Martin, Rev. Mr. John Jones officiating. The event was a quiet one, but proved quite pleasant to those present. The charming couple have the congratulations and hearty good wishes of hosts of warm friends.

The young ladies of the First Baptist church will have a unique entertainment at the church next Thursday evening, July 15th. The young ladies will be in costume, and the decorations, etc., will be of sunflowers.

A lawn party was given the members and friends of the E. T. club Friday evening at the ele-gant home of Mr. S. M. Inman, on Forsyth street. It was one of the happiest and most brilliant af fairs of the season. The spacious lawn in front of the house was brilliantly illuminated with num-erous colored lanters whose dim light was shed over the entire lawn. In front of the door a large lantern with "E. T. club" in transparent lefters, was hung. In the centre of the lawn a tent was placed in which was stationed the orchestea, which discoursed sweet music during the entire evening. By nine o'clock the young folks had ar-rived and until almost dawn the happy party kept up their festlyines.

In prome hading and with the delightful convertation the evening was happily spent, and the occasion was one which will long be remembered by all present. During the evening a delightful supper was served. Mr. and Mrs. Inman, as host and hostess, entertained in the charming manner for which

Wednesday evening at Trinity church Miss Minnie LaHatte was married to Mr. Charles Bed-ingfield. Long before the hour for the marriage the church was filled with friends and acquaintances of the couple to witness the ceremony. At six o'clock, as Professor Kruger played the beauti-ful wedding march, the attendants, Mr. Clifford Nean and Miss Annie LaHatte, and Mr. M. F. La-Hatte and Miss Mattie Perkins marched down the aisles and formed on either side the aitar. The bride and groom followed and formed between the attendants. Rev. Mr. Lee performed the ceremony in a beautiful and impressive manner. His prayer of blessing was touchingly eloquent, and his benediction overslowed with beautiful thoughts. The bride was dressed in tan surah, made en train, with duchess lace and small pearls. She carried a bouquet of flowers, the gift of the greater the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Bedingfield gether with the attendants, repaired to the residence of the bride's mother on Garnett street, where a delightful supper was served. Mt. and Mrs. Bedingfield received many handsome presents, among them a silver water service, an ice cream set, silver spoons and set of ladles. The groom is a young man who c ommands the respect of all who know him, and is a gentleman of ex-cellent business qualifications. Miss Eva Carr, of this city, was married to Mr. J. D. Reeves, of St. Loais, Wednesday evening at the Third Presbyterian church. The church was beautifully decorated. At 8 o'clock Misses Macle Reeves and Nellie Nix, two pretty little misses entered the church and marched up the aisles. Each little girl was dressed in white and each bore a beautiful wreath of fragrant flowers. They were followed by the heidel party. As the each bore a beautiful wreath of fragfant Bowers, They were followed by the bridal party. As the party entered the church Mr. F. DeS. Helmer played Mendelsshon's famous wedding march. The ceremony was performed by Rev. N. Kent Smith in the presence of a large number of friends. The attendants were Mr. Walter Barton, Mr. William Sherrah, Mr. Glenn Hendrix and Mr. Edwin Carr. After the ceremony the bridal party departed to the heme of the bride, where a splendid repast was enjoyed. Mr. and Mrs. Reeves left Thursday morning for San Francisco, and from there they go to St. Louis, their future home. The bride has a nost of friends won by her gentle disposition, and levely character, who wish her a happy voyage through life.

The West Side club met Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. J. M. Stevens, on Larkin street. The president, Mr. Ben Doster, being absent, Mr. Jack Bagby presided. An impromptaprogramme was rendered. It consisted of reachings, recitations and music, and was much enjoyed by all present. The next meeting of the club will occur next Thursday evening at the residence of Mr. Ben Doster on Walker street.

The eyent has for years hear once of the most will assemble the beauty and chivalry of the classic city. The event has for years been one of the most brilliant of commencement week. Deuce, love, volley, racket! This is not with, a trias gratter, seems practice, and repressions, merely indicates the craze for that simple and inoffensive first cousin of croquet, lawn-tennis. As to the lady players, of course they play well, for they do everything well. But of the men, a cursory inspection of a game or two forces us to admit that a few perhaps know how to play, and all the rest know they know how to play, and all the rest know they know how the game ought to be played. The efforts of the second class are largely confined to graceful attitudinisting on the green sward, which is the mere pronounced and frequent, in the ratio of the becomingness of knicketbockers of the second woollen snirts to their peculiar styles of beauty. The last class, envious of both the others because unable to play, and forbidden by good taste, physical conformation and regard for the feelings of others from domning the costume, constitute the know-all critical spectators of the games. But the players, in spite of heat and ignorant criticism, keep up their volleying and love, with an occasional dence and a racket.

Mesars. Juo. T. Hunt and H. R. Chambers leave for Chalybeate Springs, in Meriweather county, next week, with their families, to spend a month. Barnesville promises to be very dull socially during the next two months. The young ladies and young gentlemen who have been attending during the next two months. The young ladies and young gentiemen who have been attending school here have all returned to their various homes for the vacation. Commencement is gone and carried with it all the visitors to our little city. All of our own people who have the time and the money to spare are packing their Saratogas preparatory to hieing away to the mountains, the sea, or anywhere to get away from town, and it is only the financial wreeks—of which your correspondent its a shining example—the business men and the politicians who are left to take care of the town. Furthermore, balls are positively prohibited, parties are too dull, ice cream festivals too unhealthy for the pocket. This brings us back to our original assertion, viz.: Barnesville promises to be

On Wednesday evening a delightful party of young people from this place sped away upon the evening train to that most delightful of summer resorts, the Warm springs. The genial proprietor was in his happiest vein, for was not this gay throng going at his behest to enjoy his hospitality-to feast their eyes upon the beautiful scenery, and to sip the health-giving waters? The ride from the depot was simply delicious. Indulging in the delightful bath, partaking of the bountiful supper, then away to the toilet. Ere long the sweet strains of Conti's Hallan band, the low hum of voices, and it needed no herald to proclaim that these gay young people were revalue in the masy dance. Joy was indeed unconfined, and

The social event of the last week was the meeting of the Novel club, at Mr. T. R. Ramspeck's residence last Friday night. The programme was of a rather unusual order and caused a very full attendance. It has been customary for the club to discuss some author and some special work ateach meeting, but at this meeting it was arranged to have the programme entirely original and to have each member of the club participate. As there are about twenty members this arrangement made the programme very long, although a number were excused, and more than three hours were required to accomplish its rehearsal. The interest did not flag, however, and both the participants and the honorary members who were present as guests, were Decatur

While out riding they went to Ooltewah, which is a little village just beyond the borders of Georgia, where they procured the necessary papers, and soon were made man and wife. Returning to Ringgold late in the evening, they informed their friends of what had occurred. The congratulations were numerous, and the happy couple were well pleased at their reception. On the 10:30 train that night they left the home of their childhood for the great west. May success attend them.

The "Euterpean club," a musical organization of our town, gave a soiree musicale on Thursday night of this week, which was attended by quite a large and appreciative audience. The consert lasted for about two hours, during which time there were some magnificent display of vocal and instrumental music, which called for and obtained the admiration and praise of all the lovers of the fine art, who were so fortunate as to be present. There appeared to be none among the listeners who were fit for "treasons, stratagems and spoils," as the whole audience seemed to be thoroughly enthused and carried away with the sweet strains of marvelous cadeuza, and the wondrous notes of sweetness that were conjured, as it were, from the depths of the plano, and they showed their appreciation of the young followers of Suterpe in frequent and spontaneous outbursts of applause. The "Euterpean club" was organized several months ago by the young ladies of our town, having for its worthy object the advancement of its members in the beautiful art of music, and it bids fair to bring to light and prominence some fine musical talent, both vocal and instrumental.

Competition and progress in the business world nake it necessary for parents to carefully consider make it necessary for parents to carefully consider this problem. A course of business training at Goldsmith's school of business, 38% South Broad street, has been the means of procuring for many young men profitable employment. One of the largest grocery houses in the city employs two of its students, and the demand for competent, well-trained young men and ladies is larger than the supply. This school has become popular because of the practical nature of the course of instruction, and it is recommended by business men as the most practical in the south. Special summer classes in business writing for boys and young ladies. Night school also. Send for circular to Goldsmith and Sullivan, principals, 38½ South Broad street.

A SOUTHERN DUEL.

How Clouds of Misfortune Hung for Years Over the Mason and McCarty Families. From the McDowell Bugle, Marion, N. C.

In 1815, Armistead T. Mason, of Loudon county, Va., entered the senate of the United county, Va., entered the senate of the United States—young, handsome, gifted, wealthy, with all his family prestige about him. He was also quick to anger and rather overbearing. When in the senate I believe he was the youngest member of that body. His father had been a United States senator before him, and was a nephew of the illustrious George Mason just mentioned.

The McCartys were related, remotely in blood and closely in marriage, to the Masons, the sister of this Armistead T. Mason having married William McCarty, afterward a member of the house of representatives. In 1820, when Mason had been about four years in the senate, there arose between him and John M. McCarty, the brother of William, some difficulty of a politibittered by the influence of injudicial friends, until the usual result of such "difficultiesi' in those days was reached.

Mason had a young and devoted wife with one child, a pretty little boy but a few months old. Their home was called Selma, in the county of Loudon. John M. McCarty was a brilliant young lawyer of the same county, and he was soon to be married to the lovely Lucinds Lee. When about to start for the "field of honor" Mason persuaded his unsuspecting wife to go on a visit to his mother, who lived at the old Mason homestead, Rasperry Pain, a few miles distant. All were in who lived at the old Mason homestead, Raspberry Plain, a few miles distant. All were in total ignorance of his intentions. He left with his physician a letter directed to my mother, asking her, in case of his death, to go to his wife and comfort her.

They fought at Bladensburg. Mason fell at the first fire, and never spoke again. The old physician and my mother hastened to his young widow and darling boy, and had the hard task of telling first the dreadful news, and transforming a world which held nothing but beauty and happiness for them into a and transforming a world which held nothing but beauty and happiness for them into a dreary desert, scarce better than the grave. Weeks passed, so overwhelming was her grief, before it became certain that she would regain her senses. Scarcely less heartrending was the sorrow that bowed down the dead senator's fond mother.

In the mean time McCarty had written to Miss Lee, relating what he had done, giving her a week for reflection, and asking her to tell him at the end of that time whether she slayer of Senator Mason, became erratic and for much of the time a wanderer. He would leave his home without a word and be gone for years, his own wife not knowing where, and then would as suddenly reappear, unkempt and haggard, with hair long on the shoulders and beard descending to his waist.

After all this the old Mason house at Raspberry Plain stood shut up and empty for years. In due time, of course, it became "hannted," and, as might have been expected, a pistol shot was sometimes heard there at night by veracious passers by; but at length it passed into careful though strange hands, and is now, with Selms also, once more the scene of prosperity and happiness.

BILL ARP'S LETTER.

THE GENIAL PHILOSOPHER IN A

Impossible to be Calm and Screens This Kind of Weather-Mrs. Arp and the Children and Dogs —A Family Barbecue, With no Politics in It-Other Notes of Interest.

It is impossible to be calm and serene this kind of weather. For thirty days it has rained every day except three. In all that time we have plowed but a day and a half, The farmers are in grass and trouble. wheat has sprouted in the shock. Late oats fell down and could not be cut.

Tem Moore says he will have no more bis cuit and corn bread scratches his throat. I've been watching and waiting for a month to sow cow peas on my stubble land, but just as I get ready it rains again. Three times I've plowed about half a land and had to quit. If it don't rain in the morning it gets up a shower in the afternoon and sometimes comes down night. The grounn is full that most every rain makes a flood. Our branch that crosses the road gets on a boom every few days. We had hauled lumber to the meadow to build a fence, and the other day 'the water got on a tare overflowed, and the plank and posts were floating around loose and drifting to the current, and so Carl had to put on some old clothes and swim across and drag the plank to higher ground. Our foot logs and water gates have gone down the branch to the creek and down the creek to the river and down the river to the Gulf of Mexico. John Rowland ways he reckens the rain will start the reckens the rain will start to the Gulf of Mexico. Rowland says he reckons the rain will stop now that the elections are over, for the heavens were weeping for the lies that were told. John is the coroner, and was sent for yesterday to come to town quick and hold an inquest. When he got there the boys told him it was the Bacon party that was dead and they wanted to know what killed it. John is a Bacon mum and had liked to have fit. After every rain my wife has the piaza floor washed up so that the dogs will have a clean place to walk on. If it was not for the children and every rain my wife has the piaza floor washed up so that the dogs will have a cloan place to walk on. If it wasent for the children and dogs I dont know what she would do for a living. The flees have come by the thousand, and I sometimes hint that flies will haunt a dirty house. The grand-daddies are meandering around and keep her and the girls in a lively condition. The little hals peartin'em up at night as they skim around the room. Wish I had a tame one that would come in when I didn't want company. I toid Carl that bats eggs were worth ten dollars apiece, and he was hunting all round for a nest until his mother told him they didn't lay eggs. One of our peafowls lost her young in a storm and the other has quit her nest because it was watersoaked. The little guineas were drowned out. The watermelon vines won't fruit and are sickly. Snap beans don't taste good and the beets and squashes are watery. Our little chaps thought the shepherd dog's tail was too long and they squared the end with a pocket knife. They found the old cat in the orchard and set all the dogs on him and said they thought it was a rabbit. They have worn their heels out making knuckholes and their big-toes out making knuckholes and their plotes out making knuckholes and their big-toes out making knuckholes and their bi

We all play whist some nights and I let her side beat just to keep things calm and serene. I've seen some men beat their wives at cards and brag over it, but the wey didn't have much sense. It is thunder in gright now, and sounds like war cannon away off. Most overy evening we will sit in the plazza and watch the clouds bank up in the west about sundown, and the children shape them in their fancy to the image of lions and them in their fancy to the image of lions and horses and boats and giants and all sorts of things just like folks always did, I reckon. Mr. Shakespeare did, I know, for Hamlet first: "Do you see yonder cloud that's in shirty fire a came!"

come in until away in the night. She is read-ing a love story in the parlor and my money slips away just as easy. She always did have an idea that it was my business to keep her in money, and I reckon it is. She gave me a pair of shees the other day. She is mighty good to Hamlet—Methinks it is like a camel.

Hamlet—Methinks it is like a weasel.

Pol.—It is backed like a weasel. -Or like a whale.

Pol.—Very like a whale.

And so the clouds shift and change like a And so the clouds shift and change like a huge panerama until the curtain of night falls before them. We have rainbows now single and double, and I never see one without thinking of that bag of money that lies hidden in the end. The katydids have come, hey came last night, and some olks say it will be just three months to frost three months to a day. These little musicians in green uniform don't play but one tune, a very monotonous tune, but they play it loud and play it long. They make a kettle drum of their bodies, and rub their overlapped wings together so fast you can hear the scraping for half a mile on a still, quiet night. In a month the females lay their eggs in the tesplit of a tender limb, and then they die. One glorious menth of noisy life and that is all. But who does not give joyous welcome to the katydrid. It is like the annual visit of the junebug, or the swallow, or the whippoorwill, katydid. It is like the annual visit of the junebug, or the swallow, or the whippoorwill, that love the habitations of man, and are not found in the wilderness. The junebugs are late this year. The children have found but two to tic threads on their legs and let them float in the air and zoon. But they will come now, since the corn is beginning to tassel. I never saw such corn. On the bottom land it has outgrown the grass, and is all in a strut. It has not had but one plowing, and will never have sny more. It is too late now to be It has not had but one plowing, and will never have any more. It is too late now to be fooled with, and will make a crop rain or no rain. So we will have corn and potatoes anyhow, and that is more than some folks have. Sweet potatoes are splendid, and can't be cut off now. The Irish potatoes are good, too, but are hard to find, for the weeds have covered them. The peaches have rotted and the apples are specked. The grapes are still sound, but can't stand much more water. We have a sheep or two to spare, and a fat shoat, and are going to have a family barbecue when the children come. So it is all'right, rain or have a sheep or two to spare, and a fat shoat, and are going to have a family barbecue when the children come. So it is all right, rain or no rain, and we are going to be as happy as we can. There is no politics in these family barbecuet—no fuss, no fight, no repentance, no axes to grind. I used to get awful tired when I was a boy turning the grindstone. That is what the people are doing now—turning the grindstone for the office seekers to grind their axes. I saw Dick Hargis yesterday. He was lectioneering for the legislature and stood up a little higher than I ever saw him. My corn is awful tall this year, and I want Dick Hargis to help me pull fodder. He could stand flatfooted and strip a stalk right down so easy. Then when he gets to the legislature he would sympathize with farmers and talk up for them. We will have to send Major Foute because he hasent got but one arm and cant pull fodder. If a man fit for his country and is fit for office and wants it, I'm for him. There is nothing too good or too honorable for a patriot who showed his faith by his works. Poople may say that the war is over and all that, but the men who fought it are here yet, many of them, and I honor them for their courage and seem sacrifices they made. Some of our people are ashamed of the whole business and excuse themselves by saying "the politicians drew us in the lower of Benj. J. Williams, a well known Massachusetts man, that was recently published with favorable comments in the Lowell, Mass.

sachusetts man, that was recently published with favorable comments in the Lowell, Mass. Eun, wherein he says: "The demonstrations in the south in honor of Mr. Jefferson Davis are of a remarkable character and furnish matter for profound consideration. Twenty-one years after the fall of the confederacy he anddenly emerges from his long retirement and everywhere receives the most overwhelming manifestations of heart felt affection, devotion and reverance. Such manifestations as no existing ruler in the world can obtain from his people and such as were never before given to a public man, old, out of effice with no favors to distanchised.

"Such homoge is significant—startling. It is useless to attempt to deny, disguise or evade the conclusion that there must be something great and noble and true in him and in the cause to evoke this homage."

the corclusion that there must be something great and noble and true in him and in the cause to evoke this homage."

But I will only add the conclusion of this letter—the most admirable and gratifying that has ceme from any source since the war. I know that your two hundred and fifty thousand readers will thank you for publishing it all—every word—for there is not a waste word in it, and so I send it to you, with my earnest request that you give it to them in full. It has cheered me up and restored my southern manhood. He says in conclusion: "The confederacy fell, but she fell not until she had achieved immortal fame. But few nations have ever won such a series of brilliant victories as that which illuminates forever the annals of her armies, while the fortitude and patience of her people, and particularly of her noble women, under incredible trials and sufferings, have never been surpassed."

When such sentiments come from a northern man, who like the great and noble Webster is surrounded by not only passion and prejudice, but fanaticism, and when a Lowell paper dares to publish them with favorable comment what may we not hope for. Will not justice be done even in our day? Will not our maimed soldiers have a reasonable prospect of living to be placed upon the pension rolls of honor and draw the back pay that is justly their due?

For Toilet Use.

Ayer's Hair Vigor keeps the hair soft and pliant, imparts to it the lustre and freshness of youth, causes it to grow luxuriantly, eradicates Dandruff, cures all scalp diseases, and is the most cleanly of all hair preparations.

AYER'S Hair Vigor has given me perfect satisfaction. I was nearly bald for six years, during which time I used many hair preparations, but without success. Indeed, what little hair I had, was growing thinner, until I tried Ayer's Hair Vigor. I used two bottles of the Vigor, and my head is now well covered with a new growth of hair.

— Judson B. Chapel, Peabody, Mass.

HAIR that has become weak, gray, and faded, may have new life and color restored to it by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. My hair was thin, faded, and dry, and fell out in large quantities. Ayer's Hair Vigor stopped the falling, and restored my hair to its original color. As a dressing for the hair, this preparation has no equal.—Mary N. Hammond, Stillwater, Minn.

Vigor, and beauty in the preserved for an indefinite period by the use of Ayer's Hair Vigor. A discass of the scalp caused my hair to become harsh and dry, and to fall out freely. Nothing I tried seemed to do any good until I commenced using Ayer's Hair Vigor. Three bettles of this preparation restored my hair to a healthy condition, and it is now soft and pliant. My scalp is cured, and it is also free from dandruff.—Mrs. E. B. Foss, Milwaukee, Wis.

Ayer's Hair Vigor, Sold by Druggists and Perfumers.

PERFECT SAFETY, prompt action, and wonderful curative properties, easily place Ayer's Pills at the head of the list of popular remedies for Sick and Nervous Headaches, Constipation, and all ailments originating in a disordered Liver.

I have been a great suffered from Headache, and Ayer's Chinartic Pills are the only Modicine that has ever given me relief. One dose of these Pills will quickly move my bowels, and free my head from pain. — William L. Page, Bichmond Va.

Has been reposed in us, and we intend to stand right up and toe the mark. The truth is, we began this season with such slaughtering work against competition that we have had one hands full to keep up with our patronage. Scarcely a day has passed without our offering something to attract general attention, and then, best of all, everything we have had has been sold at marvellously low figures. We haven't deceived anybody, and the public knows it. The public knows who to trust, too. Years of fair dealing has made our house a name for reliability which no one can question.

Clean, Straight, Honest BARGAINS!

The 4th of July is over, the weather continues warm, and still some people are not happy.

Well, come to see us, and we'll make you happy.

Bargains in every square inch of our establishment this week.

Bargains for young and old, rich and poor—all a like.

You get your money's worth and more.

You get polite attention and a lemonade thrown in, if you like it. We always keep lemonade on Mondays.

5 CENTS!

5 Cents—At this price we are selling a beautiful Lace Striped Nun's Veiling, clean all-wool filling. Never sold before for less than 10c. and 124 by us. These goods are handsome, and fine enough for any lady, and if you miss this bargain you will never again see anything as good for less than 10c.

THEY ARE SIMPLY GRAND!

if bought in the regular way we could not sell for less than 20c.

This case and the lot of goods above at 5c., were bought and shipped us by our buyer, simply because they were cheap. You will like them, and you should not miss them.

25 CENTS—For a splendid Overall, both in Blue Den ims and Brown Duck. Another large shipment of these goods received last week, and you can find your size without trouble.

The material in these Overalls can't be bought for less than 42c. We could get 50c. for these goods, but we bought them cheap, and a small profit is all that we want. In fact, it is knowing how to BUY CHEAP, and then being willing to WORK FOR A SMALL MARGIN—that has built our large trade.

IMMENSE SHIPMENTS.

Immense shipments of cheap Dress Goods opened last week. We are selling these goods at but little over half our former price; in fact the Dress Goods we had on hand as well as recent shipments are AWAY DOWN IN PRICE. BLACK CASHMERES.

A recent opening of these goods has enabled us to show by far the handsomest fabrics ever shown in the south, and we don't hesitate to say that our prices are from 10 to 20 per cent under any southern house on these goods.

BLACK SILKS. We handle none but the best makes, and our prices range as follows: 50c, 60c, 75c, $1.00, $1.25, $1.50, $1.75, up to $2.50. We should be pleased to have you examine our black and colored silks, feeling confident that we can save you some money.

25 CENTS. At this price we sell a bleached and half bleached Table Damask. All pure linen, 58 inches wide; think of the width, 58 inches, and the price, 25c. Ain't this too bad?
